Group Against Research Plans At Institute

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A militant antiwar group driven from a Massachusetts Institute of Technology research laboratory by helmeted police using billy clubs says demonstrations against defense research will continue.

The demonstrations Tuesday and Wednesday were directed by the November Action Committee, a group composed of college-age protesters including members of Students for a Democratic Society.

Opposes MIT Work
The group opposes work done at MIT's Instrumentation Laboratory on the guidance system for the Poseidon missile.

MIT said work at the laboratory went on as usual. NAC said it halted research for two hours and called it a victory.

"Soon we will be able to stop it for much longer than that, and some day we will stop it forever along with the whole imperialist system which is research supports," a NAC statement said.

Police Move In
Police, moving with military precision, drove some 300 protesters from the laboratory.

School officials were unable to determine how many of the demonstrators were MIT students.

The helmeted officers marched on the demonstrators after some of them forcibly prevented research workers from entering the laboratory.

One person, an MIT student identified as Allan Fuchs, 19, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace and unlawful assembly.

Ten persons were treated for minor injuries, but none were hospitalized. An MIT spokesman said seven of the injured were not MIT students.

Retreat Approved
Police allowed the demonstrators to retreat slowly down the open end of a narrow street fronting on the one-story laboratory.

MIT said the university-owned laboratory is on a public way two blocks from the main campus and the call for police was made by civil authorities, not school officials.

Cambridge City Solicitor Philip Cronin and a police lieutenant were knocked down in scuffles. Repeated warnings from police over bullhorns and loudspeakers preceded the police march.

3 Viet Cong Flags
Some demonstrators called for "Victory to the National Liberation Front." Three Viet Cong flags were in evidence in the crowd.

MIT President Howard W. Johnson said the faculty was expected to meet to discuss the incident and consider the issue of war-related research.

Keeping Money In Home Doesn't Pay Dividends

OTISVILLE (AP) — Mrs. J.F. Hourtienne had urged her husband to take his strongbox from under the rug in the bedroom and take it to the bank. "He just hadn't gotten around to it," she said Wednesday after it was stolen.

The Hourtienes told State Police that the strongbox held $10,000 in cash, $8,000 in bank certificates and $12,000 in U.S. savings bonds.

Neighbors reported seeing a youth at the rear of the Hourtienne home near Otisville some 18 miles northwest of Flint. A back door had been forced. Mrs. Hourtienne was shopping and her husband was at work.

N. Vietnam Infiltration Speedup Expected By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key U.S. officials expect North Vietnam to increase its troop infiltration into South Vietnam in the near future after almost six months of decline.

Such action could pose a threat to President Nixon's timetable for withdrawing American ground combat forces from Vietnam, and authorities here are watching developments closely now that the weather is

Mekong Delta Casualty List Running High

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops stormed a South Vietnamese navy task force headquarters in the Mekong Delta today and blasted their way into two American infantry camps in the central highlands, killing 36 allied troops and wounding 125.

Allied headquarters said 105 North Vietnamese were killed in the three attacks, which dealt allied forces one of their heaviest day's losses this year.

The South Vietnamese suffered the most, losing 25 per cent of the 500 marines and navy men at the amphibious task force headquarters in the Mekong Delta 138 miles southwest of Saigon. A spokesman said 27 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 98 wounded in the night-long attack by 500 North Vietnamese soldiers.

The South Vietnamese defenders said they killed 75 of the enemy, and that 56 enemy bodies were found along the camp's barbed wire perimeter.

Nine Americans were killed and 27 wounded in the two attacks on troops of the 4th Infantry Division in the highlands near the provincial capitals of Pleiku and Kontum. The U.S. Command said the American troops killed 30 North Vietnamese, many of them sappers hurling dynamite bombs into bunkers.

It was the third straight day of heavy fighting after a nine-week lull in the Vietnam war. The increase in enemy assaults are certain to send American casualties soaring upward, a factor which President Nixon said in his Vietnam war speech Monday could slow his timetable for withdrawal of U.S. troops.

This week's totals will be announced next Thursday.

Smog Control

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California legislators, who have enacted the nation's strictest motor vehicle smog control law, are now considering even tougher controls.

Chairman Peter Schabarum of a special assembly subcommittee on air pollution told a reporter the present laws aren't strong enough and he is preparing legislation for next January to improve them.

improving along infiltration routes.

Buildups Underway
According to some reports reaching Washington, the buildup already has started. But the situation is not yet clear as information on North Vietnamese troop flow along such jungle routes as the Ho Chi Minh trail linking North and South Vietnam through Laos is slow to come in.

Based on present prospects, however, some authorities believe Hanoi will not only substantially strengthen its forces in the South by early next year but will launch an offensive to put new pressures for concessions on President Nixon.

Level Of Combat Cited
If the enemy does not significantly raise infiltration and the level of combat in this period, these experts say, it could mean either Hanoi's ability to escalate the war is limited or that it was sticking to a policy of gradual de-escalation—or both.

Such a development would fit in with Nixon's program of U.S. de-escalation and withdrawal. In any event, the next three to five months evidently will be a critical period for judging enemy action in the light of Nixon's

Governor Gets Alternative To Parochialism

LANSING (AP) — An alternative to Gov. William Milliken's $25 million parochialism proposal has been introduced in the Senate by three Republicans.

The measure, which calls for income tax credits for those who pay private school tuition, would cost "about $2-$3 million," says Taxation Chairman Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, who offered the bill.

Republicans Sens. N. Lorraine Beebe of Dearborn and Gordon Rockwell of Mount Morris also signed the measure.

Milliken's proposal, tacked on to the billion-dollar state school aid bill now under study in the Senate Appropriations Committee, calls for the $25 million to be granted for paying portions of lay teachers' salaries in parochial and private schools.

The second proposal, referred to DeMaso's committee for action, provides that every person who pays tuition for students in elementary or secondary grades of private schools "which have complied with the school laws of the state" shall be allowed a credit on his income tax.

Such a credit would have to be claimed on a tax return filed within six months after the end of the taxable year for which the credit is claimed.

The bill further stipulates that "in no event shall the credit allowed... be in excess of the tax liability of the taxpayer."

Credits would range from 20 per cent on total tuition under $100 to not more than $2,000 on total tuition over $200.

36 Missing In Tanker Mishap

BOSTON (AP) — Battling mountainous seas and spray-laden winds, a flotilla of rescue ships continued a mammoth search off the coast of southern New England today for 36 men feared lost in the break-up of a tanker during a roaring Nor'easter.

The tanker, the 629-foot S.S. Keo, split in Half Wednesday and the Coast Guard said that at last report, most of the crewmen were thought to have taken refuge on the ship's stern.

The bow of the ruptured vessel was found Wednesday. The Keo, of Liberian registry, carried 210,000 barrels of No. 6 fuel oil, and the Coast Guard said her breakup posed a serious pollution threat.

The Keo's last distress signal was monitored at 10:30 a.m. (EST) Wednesday. At the time, the captain indicated that he thought the stern would remain afloat for only another hour.

The same storm also disabled a 41-foot luxury yacht Wednesday, but the seven men aboard it were rescued today by the tanker Thomas M. and were being taken to Boston.

The yacht, the Morgan sloop Whisper, was en route from Marion, Mass., to Bermuda when it began breaking up in the storm.

The Thomas M. said all seven were safe, though two were "slightly injured."

State Republicans Kill Tax Relief For Elderly

LANSING (AP) — A bill calling for $9.4 million in increased property tax exemptions for the elderly failed to get the required majority in a partisan vote in the Michigan House Wednesday.

One Vote Short
The vote, 55-48 for passage, fell short of the necessary 56 votes as Democrats favored and Republicans opposed it.

The measure proposed boosting the property tax exemption for elderly homeowners from $2,500 to $3,500 of state equalized valuation. Currently, homeowners over 65 who meet income and residency requirements pay no property tax on the first $2,500 of the equalized valuation of their property.

House Republicans, however, joined majority Democrats in unanimously approving a bill raising the nontaxable "senior citizen" income allowance from $5,000 to $6,000 starting next year.

$3.5 Million Saving
The bill, which would save some 200,000 elderly taxpayers approximately $3.5 million next year, was adopted 102-0 by the lower chamber and sent to the Senate.

Senate acceptance of the bill remains unclear, since two similar measures now before it have failed to receive floor action.

Pentagon Eyes Disorder Plans

Armed Forces Available If Trouble Starts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says it has started "precautionary planning" to deal with possible disorders when antiwar groups stage a "march against death" through the capital next week.

It reported a total of 28,000 soldiers and Marines are available in the general Washington area, if needed. About 10,000 of these troops are in organized units and many have riot control training.

More Militants Involved
Unlike the Oct. 15 Vietnam Moratorium, government leaders believe more militants will be involved this time and may attempt confrontations with authorities.

However, demonstration leaders have said repeatedly the protests will be peaceful. Earlier this week protest organizers disavowed any connection with a proposed demonstration by the Youth International party—Yippies—one of the more radical groups.

The government fears violence center on a proposed Nov. 15 mass march along Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol past the White House to a rally near the Washington Monument.

Negotiations for a parade permit have broken down, mainly over the march route, with Justice Department officials concerned the demonstrators would virtually surround the executive mansion.

Problems Likely
This would present a serious security problem, Justice officials say, compounded if their "reliable reports" of potential violence came true.

Regular troops will be brought in only if civilian police

Former State Corrections Official Dies

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—The man sometimes credited with transforming Washington's institutions system from a sprawling relic into one of the best in the nation is dead.

Dr. Garrett Heyns, 76, for nine years director of the state's Department of Institutions, died Monday at Western State Hospital, where he had been for about a month under treatment for complications from chronic heart failure.

His body was being sent to Grand Rapids, Mich., for funeral services and burial.

Heyns came to the post in September 1967, after he retired as Michigan state director of corrections.

Goldwater Hails Agnew's 'Revolt'

HONOLULU (AP) — If Vice President Spiro T. Agnew keeps up his criticism of antiwar demonstrators "he may find himself being boomed for president before it's even his turn," Sen. Barry Goldwater said today.

Prepares Address
In his prepared keynote address to the Western States Republican Conference, the unsuccessful 1964 GOP presidential candidate said Agnew's strong attacks on the peace movement leaders express "the sentiment of the vast, overwhelming majority of the American people." Goldwater said the vice president was "accurate and penetrating" in calling the antiwar demonstration leaders "impudent snobs" and should be praised, not vilified.

"Crime" Detailed
"The vice president's crime, it seems, was to describe an effete corps of impudent snobs as 'an effete corps of impudent snobs,'" Goldwater said.

"When a liberal makes any kind of outlandish charge against his nation or his President, it is taken as a proper exercise in the right of free speech and a legitimate expression of political dissent," he said.

"However, if a conservative or a supporter of the Nixon administration vigorously attacks an activity which is undermining an American military effort, he automatically becomes 'irresponsible' and 'intemperate' in the view of the leftist media," he added.

President Boom Noted
Goldwater spoke of an Agnew for President boom in the last paragraph of a speech in which he called for Republicans to unite behind President Nixon and the Republican administration's Vietnam policy.

He also had his own characterization of participants in antiwar demonstrations: "Many of them are concerned, warm-hearted but, I believe, misguided Americans who sincerely want an end to the

Black Panther Leader Given 4-Year Term

CHICAGO (AP) — Judge Julius J. Hoffman has sentenced Black Panther leader Bobby G. Seale to four years in prison for contempt of court during the trial of eight men on conspiracy charges.

A mistrial was declared in the case of Seale, but the trial of the other seven men accused of conspiring to cross state lines and disrupt the 1968 Democratic National Convention by inciting riots moved into its seventh week.

Judge Hoffman acted Wednesday after a long series of outbursts by Seale which at one point prompted the judge to have the defendant brought in bound and gagged.

The conflict between Seale and Judge Hoffman revolved about Seale's contention that William M. Kunstler, representing other defendants, was not his lawyer and that he had the right to defend himself.

Judge Hoffman cited 16 specific instances where Seale interrupted proceedings and sentenced him to three months in prison for each incident. He also set April 23 for Seale's trial on the riot conspiracy charge.

Seale, 32, was bound and gagged Oct. 29 after his repeated outbursts. He was carried into the U.S. District Court in that fashion Oct. 30 and 31 but Judge Hoffman, without explanation, rescinded the order Monday.

When Seale attempted to question a California sheriff's deputy Wednesday, Judge Hoffman adjourned the trial for three hours and returned with his contempt and mistrial rulings.

Environment Study: Task Force Sets Public Hearings

Members of Governor Milliken's Natural Resources and Pollution Task Force will meet in Lansing on Saturday, Nov. 8 for an all-day briefing session.

The participants in the session will include officials of the Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan Department of Health.

Mrs. Ernest Nebel, Gladstone, is the Task Force representative from this area.

The group is concerned in finding solutions to environmental and pollution problems and its recommendations will from the base upon which the 1970 Republican platform on these issues will be structured.

In its information gathering the Task Force will hold three hearings in Michigan, with the first scheduled at the State Office Building in Escanaba at 7:30 p. m. Monday, Nov. 24.

Rep. John Payant, Iron Mountain, will preside, and the public hearing will explore problems of pollution, forestry and tourism. Other hearings are to be held Dec. 4 in Grand Rapids and Dec. 11 in Macomb County.

In evaluating the problems, the Task Force will, after the Electric Autos Could Shatter U.S. Economy

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—If the United States ever converts to electrically-powered vehicles, the major economic impact would be in the field of taxes, an economist said Wednesday.

Bruce C. Netschert, director of National Economic Research Associates, Washington, told the first international electric vehicle symposium any shift from internal combustion would affect both state and federal taxes.

He said motor fuel taxes accounted for 14 per cent of all state taxes and 2.6 per cent of federal taxes last year. If this were lost, he said, it would have to be made up with a tax levied on the electricity used to power vehicles.

He suggested development of effective mass transit system in cities would help alleviate this problem and cut highway construction costs.

Several speakers pointed out that it will be many years before electric cars are common. For one thing, they said, there is no battery which will provide the fast acceleration and range of the internal combustion engine.

Dr. J. H. B. George, head of chemical systems research of Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., said would take a national effort comparable to the Manhattan Project, which developed the atom bomb, to come up with an acceptable battery.

He predicted there would be more electric-power vehicles of the golf-cart type around retirement communities, but foresaw few on the freeways.

"Imagine moving out on a freeway with no acceleration power in a car like that, with a truck bearing down on you," he said. "It's a safety problem as well as a battery development problem."

$300,000 To $400,000 Is Cost:

C&NW Official Claims Dust Controls Coming

The Chicago & North Western Railway Co., expects to spend between $300,000 and $400,000 to control dust at its iron ore shipping terminal in Escanaba.

W. H. Huffman of Chicago, assistant vice president and chief engineer for the railroad, informed the Daily Press today that the railroad is "working on a solution" to the problem.

Huffman responded to a letter from the Daily Press which asked what the C&NW is doing to control the dust coming from ore unloading and loading at the multi-million dollar terminal.

Collecting Data

"You were correctly advised by representatives of the Michigan Department of Public Health that we are diligently working on a solution," Huffman said. "Later this week we expect to have all of the necessary facts to evaluate a dust suppression system and a dust collection system at this facility."

"Prior to reaching that decision, I am not in a position to answer the questions in the fourth paragraph of your letter other than to say that the installation will cost in the area of $300,000 to $400,000," he said.

"We assure you that the Railway is cognizant of your concern but, with an expenditure of this size, it is necessary that we carefully review all of the aspects of the new installation."

Questions Asked

The Daily Press, through a letter from Editor David Andrews, asked "what type of equipment will be installed, what degree of effectiveness, what are the plans for construction, etc., and when? How much might such a system cost?"

Huffman said he would "get in touch" when he has more information on the program available.

The C&NW has been requested to appear before the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission to present its firm, action program for controlling the dust problem at the terminal. When the commission met in Escanaba last month, the Delta County Citizens Committee to Save Our Air and residents of north Escanaba near the terminal voiced strong complaints about the terminal's operation.

Board Acts

Tuesday night, the Delta County Board of Supervisors added its voice, asking the Air Pollution Control Commission to order the railroad to control the dust from the terminal.

The terminal, a conveyor-type facility which stockpiles iron ore from Upper Peninsula mines for shipment via Great Lakes boats to midwestern steel centers, opened early this year. First loading of boats was in April.

Dust is emitted from the terminal as ore, primarily the pelletized type, is dumped from railroad cars onto the conveyors. Dust also results as ore is transferred from one conveyor to another.

war and bloodshed in Southeast Asia.

Very Sick People

"A few, I suspect, are very sick people. Their ailment can be described as 'delerium treason.'"

He said critics of President Nixon's policy may be pressing their luck.

"I believe they may well discover in weeks to come that there is one thing the American people resent much more than the Vietnam war and that is the disruption of schools and public demonstrations which inconvenience many citizens and play into the hands of those persons whose business it is to kill American fighting men."

Art Group Will Hear Mrs. Smith; Public Invited

The local Art Association will meet Sunday, Oct. 9, in the dining room of the Mediocenter. There will be a short business meeting to complete plans for city calendar drawings and the pre-Christmas Art Fair.

The program, arranged by Mrs. Joseph Vogt, program chairman, and her committee, will be a presentation of church vestments by Mrs. Stack Smith, whose vestments are now being used in many parts of the world. She will display a number of vestments she has made. Among them will be a set made of hand woven material woven by Mrs. Donald Beno, former Escanaba resident, now of Kaukauna, Wis.

There will be several sets of vestments shown by courtesy of the Holy Name Chapel, one set by courtesy of Fr. Marcotte of Holy Name, and a solemn set from St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn. Interested persons are welcome. and the 2,700-man District of Columbia National Guard are unable to cope with the situation.

The emphasis so far has been on trying to gauge how big the demonstrating crowds may be, who will be involved and where any trouble might break out.

A major concern would be protection of federal buildings, including the White House.

No Final Decisions

The Pentagon, which is working with the Justice Department, said "no final decisions have been made" on any firm steps to take in advance of the demonstrations.

Basic Army contingency plans for dealing with civil disturbances were developed from experience in recent racial outbreaks, especially disorders after the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in April 1968.

The doctrine underlying these plans calls for a maximum show of force, with restraint in the use of power.

Meanwhile, the Defense Department has notified congressional military personnel will not be allowed to take part in or associate themselves with the war protests if their participation will violate the law or established Pentagon policies.

Diagging For The Truth:

Vic Is Specialist In Mining History

By CLINT DUNATHAN

Victor F. Lemmer of Ironwood, a native of Escanaba, is recognized among historians as the best informed individual on the history of the mining industry in Northern Michigan.

His most recent published work is in collaboration with Dr. George S. May and appears in a recent issue of Michigan History magazine, a quarterly publication of the Michigan Historical Commission.

Back of that article, titled "Thomas Edison's Experimental Work With Michigan Iron Ore" were long hours of research covering a quarter of a century. Indefatigable in his enthusiasm when searching out information about mining history, Lemmer followed the trail right to the old laboratory of the "Wizard of Menlo Park."

"The story took me 25 years of research, and, with the professional help of Dr. May, the idea became a reality," Lemmer said.

Too Much Haste
Back in 1963, when Vic and his brother, John of Escanaba, and their wives were returning from Europe, Vic had his opportunity to visit the Edison workshop in Orange, N. J.

"There I found the old, original letters, etc., in files, in letter cabinets. It was a 'mess' as I sat among the old phonographs and cylinder records to dig out the data," Vic reports.

"I found letters written by Edison's engineer, on hotel stationery in Marquette and Ishpeming. I also found Edison's original hand-written notes, stating that the Gogebic Range ore was the worst he had ever seen and that it could never be concentrated. In other words, he knew 75 years ahead of time that our ore could not be made into taconite—and so far there is still no process for Gogebic or Penokee ore."

He was astounded to find that "there is a tremendous amount of Edison data that has never been researched."

"Biographers seem to do things in haste in order to get their books published," he suggested, and quoted Dr. F. C. Leavelle, noted historian of Michigan: "Historians copy the mistakes of other historians."

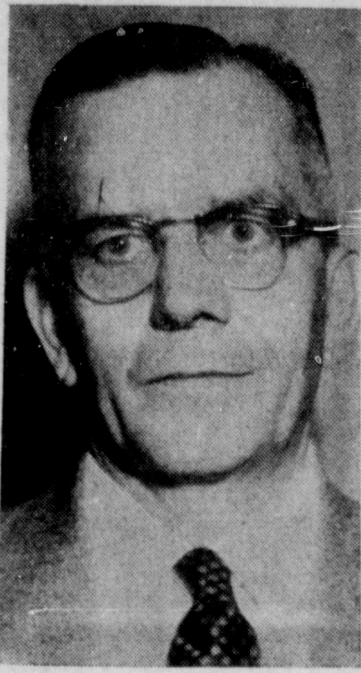

Archives In Closet
Vic Lemmer has made research his hobby—"a mission in life," as he describes it. There's no money in it for him, but he finds it enormously rewarding nonetheless.

His researches have contributed greatly to the total sum of knowledge about the history of mining in Michigan; photographs from his collections have appeared in many publications of the iron and steel industries; and he comments:

"Mining companies never keep their historical records, and so they depend on Lemmer's archives—which is clothes closet in our home! Anyhow, I have always enjoyed my hobby."

Born in Escanaba, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lemmer, he is a graduate of St. Joseph's High School and the University of Notre Dame, and his wife is the former Beatrice Boyce, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. William B. Boyce of Bark River.

Vic's contributions to the collection and preservation of historical materials and the advancement of historical knowledge have been many. He is a past president of the Historical Society of Michigan, has received recognition for his work from the American Society for State and Local History, was chairman of Michigan Week's history section, and there are Lemmer collections at the University of Michigan and in the Lansing archives of the Michigan Historical Commission.

Briefly Told

State Police issued traffic citations Wednesday to Charles Stoll, 600 Lake Shore Dr., Escanaba, no operators license and speeding; Henry Pepin, 2220 12th Ave. N., Escanaba, speeding; and Dale Belongia, Shawano, Wis., speeding.

Escanaba police have issued a traffic court notice to John E. Breitman, Bay View Location, for failing to yield the right of way.

The UCT Ladies Auxiliary will meet Saturday at 8 p. m. in the Club Room. All members are urged to attend.

Susan Garrard, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marion Garrard, 1106 7th Ave. S., Escanaba, will play the role of the stepdaughter in the production of "Six Characters in Search of an Author" to be presented by the Alma College Players Nov. 20, 21 and 22. Miss Garrard is a junior at Alma.

Floyd Schultz of Wells reported to State Police last night that seven train cars were derailed at the 3rd St. crossing of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway in Wells. The derailed cars blocked traffic for about three hours, troopers reported.

Chapekis Author Of Chapter In Reference Book

Atty. Nicholas P. Chapekis, Escanaba, former Delta County Prosecuting Attorney, is author of a chapter in "The Prosecutor's Sourcebook," a two-volume publication of the Practising Law Institute, New York City, and available in all states to members of the legal profession interested in criminal law and practices.

While serving as prosecutor of Delta County, Chapekis was invited to contribute to the publication, as were a number of judges, prosecuting and district attorneys, and other authorities in the field.

"Interviewing the Complaining Witness," written by Chapekis, based upon his experience and the procedures employed in Delta County, appears in Volume 2 of "The Prosecutor's Sourcebook" under the section on Pre-trial Preparation.

The books serve as "a ready reference to prosecuting attorneys in solving problems that arise in everyday practices," the publishers note, with the further comment that:

"The knowledge, experience and reasoning of leading prosecutors, judges, lawyers and legal scholars have been collected in these two volumes to provide the readers with the information and scholarship necessary to understand and cope with modern criminal administration."

Among the author-contributors are an associate justice of the supreme court, a professor of criminal law of the University of Detroit, an assistant attorney general of the State of Michigan, a judge of the superior court of Washington, a United States district attorney of Oregon, and others.

Two Injured In Area Accident
Two persons from Escanaba were injured, neither seriously, in a rear-end collision on County Rd. 414 near Ford River, State Police reported.

According to police, an auto being driven by Kenneth Beauchamp, 39, Rte. 1, Escanaba, struck a car driven by Victor LaFave, 61, Rte. 1, Escanaba, in the rear after LaFave had stopped to make a left turn.

Both drivers suffered minor injuries and sought their own treatment.

Beauchamp was ticketed by State Troopers for violation of the basic speed law.

Cheerleader At Valley State Is Grandmother

NORTHRIDGE, Calif. (AP) — That bouncy little cheerleader in the scarlet sweater and skirt really rouses the crowds. "She's a good kid," says Coach Leon McLaughlin of the San Fernando Valley State College football team.

Kid, yet. The cheerleader is Dorothea "Dottie" Heitz, 52, and the grandmother of four.

Mrs. Heitz leads a special cheerleader group known as the Granny Girls. The fans call for inspiration from Dottie's mini-skirted troupe when the going gets tough down on the field.

Dottie, a 1935 dropout from the University of Montana, showed up at San Fernando in 1967 to take a sociology course.

"I found at Valley State a wonderful school, but such a lack of spirit!" she recalls.

"I got into this spirit thing one day when the cheerleader had laryngitis."

"What will I do?" he asked, "and I told him get somebody else to be his voice."

"Okay, I'll go through the actions and you do the cheering," he said. "So I was his voice and that's how it started."

Granny, a peppy 5-footer, says she gets along nicely with the other coeds, most of them in their late teens or early 20s.

"There is no generation gap with us," she says. "I get invited to all the parties on the campus."

Dottie, whose return to school had the blessing of her engineer husband, received her bachelor's degree in sociology last June. Now she takes postgraduate courses.

Traffic Mishap Injures Three

Three persons were injured, none seriously, when two vehicles collided in the 1000 block, Stephenson Ave., at 2:30 p. m., Wednesday, Escanaba police report.

Richard H. Bergsvik, 52, of Chicago, who was ticketed for failing to exercise due care; Joyce E. Leach, Old State Road, and a passenger in her car, Larry Leach, were hurt.

Develop Underground Mining Capabilities, Tech's Volin Urges

The urgency of developing technology for deep underground mining was emphasized today in U. S. Senate subcommittee testimony by Prof. M. E. Volin of Michigan Technological University.

Volin cited the trend to almost exclusive concentration of effort and expenditure in improving surface mining equipment and techniques, warning that "it is not reasonable to believe that surface mining can go on forever."

The hearing is being conducted in Washington, D. C., by the Subcommittee on Minerals, Materials and Fuels on a bill to establish a national mining and minerals policy. Volin is director of Michigan Tech's Institute of Mineral Research.

Needs To Quadruple
The world's mineral needs are expected to quadruple in 30 years, Volin said, but there appears to be no great public concern about the availability of mineral supplies. He emphasized that minerals are not a renewable asset and that some authorities are concerned about future supplies sufficient even for minimal needs.

Volin pointed out that surface or strip mining has limitations of economical operating depths, competition for land uses and public attitudes concerning control of the environment.

The technology for economic mining at deep levels will remain undeveloped as long as it is more expedient to find new ore reserves accessible to surface mining than to attack the underground mining problems," Volin said. "But the problems to be overcome are so enormous that an intensive and continuing effort must be brought to bear if any significant progress is to be made in the next 25 years."

Tech Will Help
Volin said Michigan Tech is prepared to cooperate fully in the establishment and operation of a field laboratory such as recommended by the National Research Council and National Academy of Engineers.

The recommendation is for a 10-year $200 million federally funded research program over and above current government and industry efforts to establish the technological basis for reducing the cost and improving the sustained rate of advance of underground excavation.

To stay in business, Volin stated, U. S. industry increasingly has had to seek out and develop foreign resources. He contended that this shift is escalating to the point that we should ask how much reliance on foreign minerals our margin of national security can permit.

If action is not taken, he added, mineral supply constraints could develop that would limit our standards of living and weaken our national security and economy.

Safety Seminar Called At NMU

MARQUETTE — Representatives of business and industry will meet at Northern Michigan University for a one-day Management Safety Seminar Thursday, Nov. 13.

Designed for presidents and managers of Upper Peninsula firms, the seminar is a part of the continuing occupational safety program conducted by the Safety Education and Training Division, Bureau of Safety and Regulation, Michigan Department of Labor.

The Public Services Division of Northern Michigan University is co-sponsor of the event at the University Center in Marquette from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Management people interested in attending should submit their registration fee of $8, which includes the noon meal, to George Tomasi, conference director, Northern Michigan University, Marquette. Registration should be made by Monday, Nov. 10.

October Snow Most Since '33

The snowfall of two inches in Escanaba on Oct. 21 was the most for any October in Escanaba since 1933, the U. S. Weather Bureau reported today.

It was the third heaviest October snow in the past 65 years, the bureau reported.

Temperatures in October reached an average daily high of 51.3 degrees with an average low of 38.4. Highest temperature recorded came on Oct. 10 when the mercury reached 69, while the low reading of 22 degrees came on Oct. 22, the morning after the snow.

Average monthly temperature was 44.9 degrees, 2.7 degrees below normal.

Precipitation was 3.32 inches, 1.21 inches above normal, the bureau said, as some form of moisture fell on 15 of the 31 days.

More people get more news from newspapers than all other sources combined.

Boat Is Safe At Coal Docks

Safe and snug this morning at the Reiss Coal Docks in Escanaba is the commercial fishing boat "Gary B" from Beaver Island.

The "Gary B" was reported missing last night by Charles Martin of Beaver Island when she did not arrive in Escanaba after 13 hours at sea. The Coast Guard informed Martin that a cruise from Beaver Island to Escanaba would take an estimated 17 hours to complete.

The State Police issued a search bulletin at 8:30 p. m. last night and informed the Coast Guard that the vessel was reported missing.

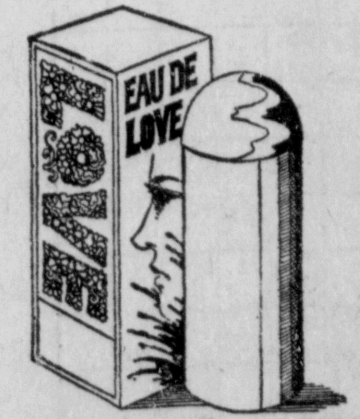

State Police and Coast Guard officials called off the search this morning when they found the 65-foot vessel tied up at the coal docks in Escanaba.

Second Round?

Before he retired from the U. S. Supreme Court, Chief Justice Earl Warren remarked that he considered the "one-man, one-vote" decision that resulted in reapportioning of state legislatures the most far-reaching decision that had been handed down by the court in his long tenure as chief justice.

Perhaps history will substantiate his appraisal, but the most dramatic of the Warren court decisions surely was the one handed down May 17, 1954, when the court ruled unanimously that racial segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

The following year — on May 31, 1955 — the court said federal courts could require "a prompt and reasonable start toward full compliance with the order and an end to segregation in public schools 'with all deliberate speed.'"

The phrase "all deliberate speed" became a mockery. Schools in the Deep South which had always practiced rigid segregation acted with anything but "deliberate speed" to integrate their classrooms. Through one subterfuge or another, Southern school districts contrived to perpetuate a dual school system — one for whites and another for blacks — although many of these districts were so poor they could ill afford to maintain one system adequately.

Now, in the first opinion handed down since Warren E. Burger succeeded Earl Warren as chief justice of the Supreme Court earlier this year, the court has ruled that integration must be carried out now — and not merely with "all deliberate speed."

Last week's order was a set back for the Nixon administration, which has indulged in foot-dragging over desegregation, although the situation in the South with which it was confronted was not of its own making.

Nevertheless, in what appeared to many as a gesture of obeisance to the Southern states for their electoral votes, the Nixon administration had pleaded for delay in desegregating 30 Mississippi school districts. The administration argued that local authorities needed more time to overcome "logistical" problems in converting school systems.

This, of course, overlooks the fact that these authorities have had all of 14 years — ever since the "deliberate speed" order of 1955 — in which to comply with the court ruling against racial segregation in the public schools. But, the administration reasoned and with some validity, if little had been done in 14 years under previous administrations it might be unreasonable to order integration now.

Placing no credence in this argument, the Supreme Court last week sent the Mississippi cases back to the Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans for a decree, effective immediately. The court said the decree must declare "that each of the school districts here involved may no longer operate a dual school system based on race or color." The appeals court was directed by the Supreme Court to retain jurisdiction of the case to insure "prompt and faithful compliance."

It will be interesting to observe what happens next.

Certainly the South will consider every means to achieve further delay in integrating schools, although it is difficult to see any course now open. If Southern districts fail to comply, the federal government has two methods of forcing desegregation. One is through legal means — employing court orders based on Supreme Court decisions outlawing segregation; the second is economic — by halting federal aid to recalcitrant school districts.

While those actions could have some impact on Southern districts, the Supreme Court order may have triggered another educational development — the all black public school system. Concern already is being expressed that if integration is forced, whites with the economic means will send their children en masse to private schools and those without the means will simply keep their children home.

And it may be that the Burger court's first opinion instead of bringing a sudden end to the system of racially segregated schools will ring the bell for the second round in the battle of the south. If so, the nation might just as well get started on the problem. There have been enough delays.

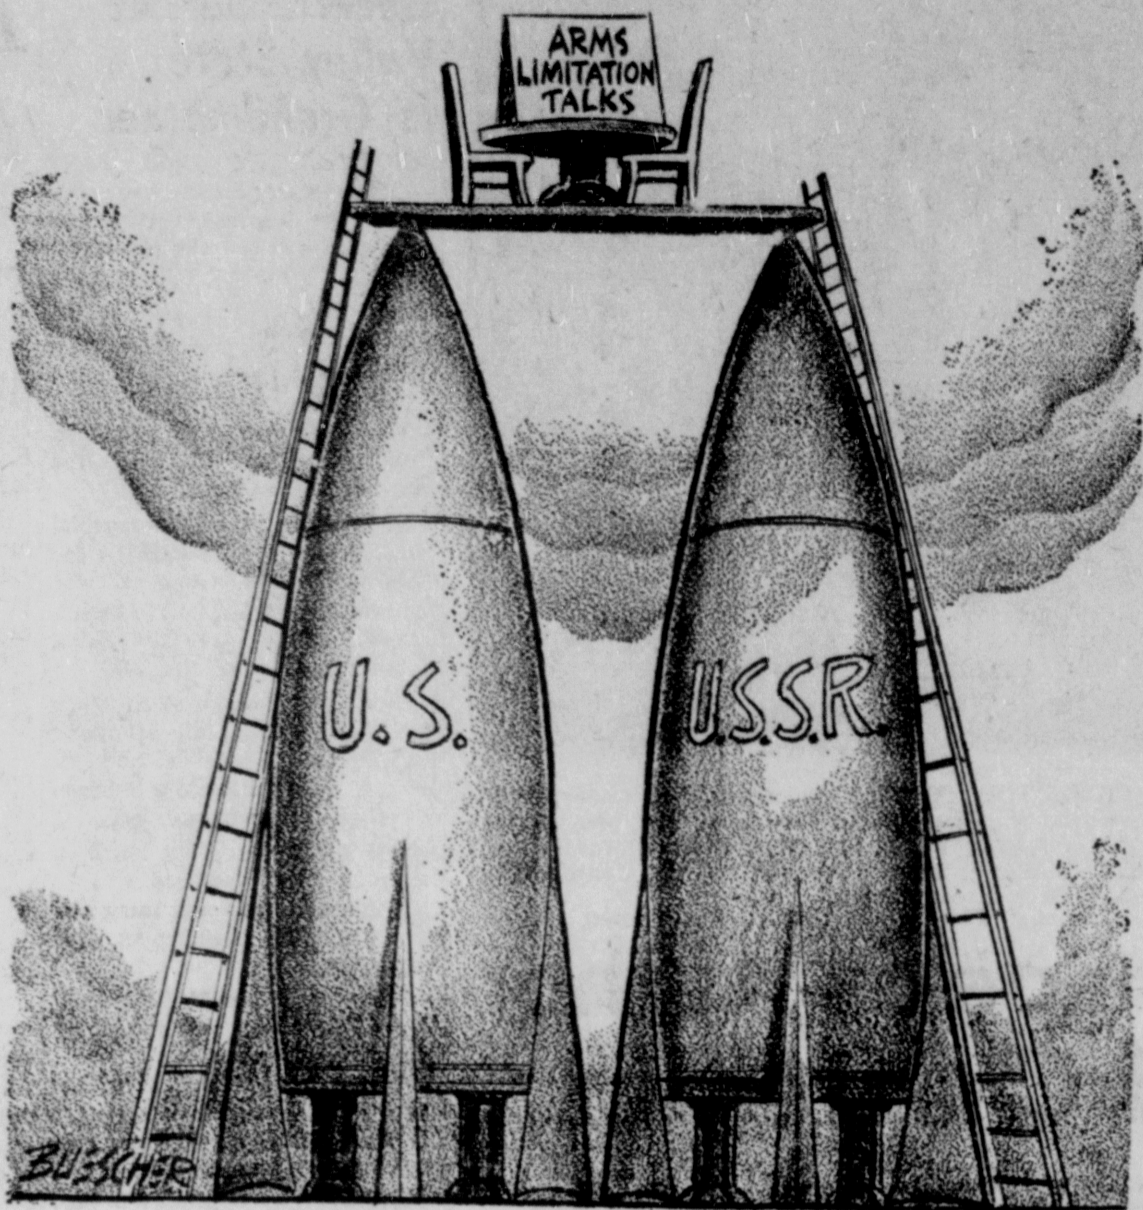

Peninsula Potpourri

James C. Payne, 53, described by Detroit police as a drifter, has been formally charged with murdering a state trooper who tried to stop a robbery attempt in the apartment house in which he lived last May. The trooper, Carl Lindberg, 22, who grew up in Iron Mountain, was slain when he went to the aid of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Lefkowitz, who were threatened by two men with guns. A friend of Payne's testified at a pretrial hearing that he loaned Payne a revolver which police said was used to shoot Lindberg. Payne was held for trial on Jan. 7. Also scheduled for trial in the same shooting death is William Dupuis, 30, a Detroit, who is charged with murdering Lindberg.

A 200-acre farm in Breitung Township, north of Iron Mountain, has been purchased by the newly organized United Sportsmen's, Inc., of Iron Mountain. Harry Khouri, president of the organization, said the farm home will be revamped for use as a snowmobile headquarters for this winter and that next year a clubhouse will be built. United Sportsmen's, Inc., also will set up archery, pistol, rifle and trap ranges and camping grounds for Boy and Girl Scouts next summer.

Sister Mary Catherine, a member of the Ursuline Order who has spent 31 years teaching in St. Ignace, has had her collection of poems, "A Green Bough in My Heart," published. She received a teaching certificate at Northern Michigan University and said that "it was while teaching in Marquette that I began writing poetry as well as plays." She has written about 50 plays and hopes to compile and publish them some day.

STRATEGIC HEIGHTS

Is 'Fair, Firm Offer' Necessarily Unfair?

BY JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Provisionally, as it must seem to the 147,000 electrical workers on strike against the General Electric Co., a ruling that GE engaged in unfair bargaining practices way back in 1960 has just been handed down by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decision does not necessarily indicate that GE is following precisely the same paths in wage-and-hour negotiations today that it followed ten years ago. However, the electrical union leaders are doing their best to make it appear that the policy known as "Boulwarism," named for retired GE Vice President Lemuel R. Boulware, is still providing the 1960 vintage guiding lines for GE bargaining strategy.

There is much mystification over "Boulwarism." The labor leaders who deal with GE would like the public to think that the word carries with it certain arbitrary connotations of rigidity in bargaining practice. It has been described as a "take-it-or-leave-it" approach to negotiating.

Actually, Lem Boulware, in the days when he was handling various problems of employee relations for GE, stood for candor, honesty, and open dealing. He wanted a continual give-and-take between management and labor, with explanations available to any questioner at any time.

His idea of good "labor practice" was to show the employees how the company had arrived at what it called a "fair firm offer" in contract negotiations. All the elements leading to the "fair firm offer" were to be spread upon the table for inspection: the profit picture, the state of international competition, the truth about inflation, the cost of raising new capital, the growth rates in productivity, the relations between GE and its tens of thousands of suppliers.

The "fair firm offer," under "Boulwarism," was supposed to be an honest offer, keyed to what the company felt was the fairest possible division between the claims of the customer, the stockholder, the management, and the employees themselves.

The majority decision of the Circuit Court in the 1960 "unfair practices" case argued that GE, by beginning with a "fair firm offer" which it presented as what it was prepared to pay, had "locked itself in." Not so, says GE: "Boulwarism" in negotiation is always ready to accept "modification and change" if new or over-looked facts can be presented to justify it.

What is interesting to the outsider in all this is the damage to our vocabulary—and hence to our processes of thinking—done by the Circuit Court's definition of what constitutes "fairness" in bargaining.

If the Court is to be taken at its word, "honest" bargaining must begin with dishonest offers on both sides. Machiavellianism becomes the standard. One side offers half of what it is disposed to settle for. The other side counters by demanding twice what it is really prepared to take. The process becomes a struggle to see who is the more competent liar, or, to put it a bit more politely, the better Oriental rug merchant.

Lem Boulware wanted to get away from all that. He wanted a company that would "level" with its employees. He wanted to deal with labor leaders capable of considered, if not scientific, judgment.

If bargaining was always to degenerate into a squabble between a nickel-nursing Jack Benny on the one hand, and a crafty rug merchant on the other, the temptation for government to step in and knock heads together (or to decide in favor of the union for purely political reasons) would become irresistible. We would have compulsory arbitration, which is next door to industrial Fascism.

As Boulware put it in a recent book called "The Truth About Boulwarism," published on a non-profit basis by the Bureau of National Affairs, Inc., in Washington, D. C., bargaining that doesn't center on mature consideration of a "fair firm offer" can reach "absurd" dimensions in duplicity.

The union leader, with his "political needs" to consider, may think the "fair firm offer" a good one but "unacceptable" because it is "theirs, not ours." Accordingly he will suggest that "just a little something" be added so that he will look good when he takes the offer back to the rank and file. Boulware recalls a negotiator saying to GE, "You don't seem to understand that I can stretch the skin of a goat over a couple of boxcars."

In short, if some sort of "Boulwarism" doesn't prevail, management and the union leaders must under most circumstances cooperate to fool the employees. Is that any way to run a railroad? Lemuel Boulware thinks not, and numerous patient citizens would presumably agree with his complaints.

Reading, Math Tests Lashed By Educators

LANSING (AP) — Several educators have objected to proposed state bills which would establish statewide tests to determine student skills in reading and mathematics.

The measures also would provide for follow-up programs of remedial assistance, including vocational training.

More Harm Than Good
 "Limiting the tests to reading and mathematics would do more harm than good," Dr. Delmo Della Dorra of the Wayne County Intermediate School District told the Senate Education Committee Tuesday.

"Such tests," he said, "are appropriate to the white middle class but discriminate against minority groups and others outside this class."

Della Dorra said there are many causes for underachievement, such as broken families, poor teachers, poor health, hunger and racial bias.

"They would make other goals less important," he said, "such as the teaching of democracy." Jonas Chenault Jr., a consultant to the State Department of Public Instruction, objected to the tests on similar grounds.

No Valid Way
 "The youngster in the ghetto speaks his own language," he said. "There is no valid way of testing the inner city child."

Richard Watson, representing Oakland County schools, said he thought such tests would be oversimplified "and might encourage scholastic stagnation."

Dr. Wilbur Brookover, professor of education at Michigan State University, said placing children without the ability to read or figure math in separate classes would deny them the opportunity to learn.

"When you assume students can't learn as well as others, you then would deny them the association with students who can learn. This would identify and label them as slow. It would mean that kids from disadvantaged backgrounds would be assigned to programs where they could not learn," he protested.

"You can't predict success in other fields on the basis of success in mathematics and reading," agreed Dr. Stuart Rankin, assistant superintendent for research of Detroit Public Schools. "There should be a fight for cultural fairness in testing."

Detroit already has an excellent testing program, he added, that supplies more information than would be provided by the proposed state program.

Dr. Robert Chamberlain, assistant superintendent of the Lansing School District, said he didn't like the idea that only a small segment of school program would be evaluated and that an entire school system would be judged on its proficiency in only two or three areas.

Other Subjects Cited
 Chamberlain said the conservatives in education feel that reading, writing and arithmetic are universally important and that all else in education should be placed in the category of frills.

"To select a portion of subject matter and to neglect the remainder is so inconsistent as to be unbelievable," he said. "Already, we are finding in our school district that teachers are reluctant to look at new practices in education because their entire attention must be focused on getting ready for assessment."

Chamberlain suggested a hard look be taken at teacher institutions. He said a group of school administrators with instruction responsibility from Flint, Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek, Lansing and other cities of similar size are doing this.

No Special Training
 In Lansing, he said, it was found among 20 new teachers of English, 19 had absolutely no instruction in the teaching of reading. A study of elementary school teachers found that of 102 new teachers, 97 had absolutely no special work in reading.

"Yet these are the same teachers whose pupils will be evaluated to determine their ability in reading," Chamberlain said.

EXPORT HUTS

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP)—Swaziland's latest export commodity is grass huts. The traditional beehive-shaped huts have caught on with tourists from neighboring white-ruled South Africa. Turned out by a team of 25 African hut-makers here at Rands 180 ($252) a throw, the huts are considered just the thing for swimming pool changerooms or garden shelters in Johannesburg's upper-class suburbs.

Opening lead—three of clubs. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury:

The question before the Court is how declarer, who sees only the North-South cards, should play the hand.

It appears from the evidence that South, the defendant in the case, got a club lead. He won with the ace, drew two rounds of trumps, and led a spade to the jack. East won and returned a club, taken in dummy.

Defendant re-entered his hand with a trump and played a spade to the queen. East won and returned a club to West's ten. When West then led the ten of spades, declarer ruffed. By now, defendant had lost three tricks.

South then misguessed the diamond finesse, losing to the queen for down one.

Defendant submits he was a victim of hard luck. He says he would have made the hand easily but for the fact that East had the A - K of spades. The Court agrees with this contention. Defendant also claims he was hexed on the deal and that this caused him to misguess the diamond finesse.

The bidding is not at issue. The plaintiff, North, accuses South of misplaying the hand. He contends the hand was a laydown and that the defendant mangled the play. "Sheer butchery," he calls it.

He says that South should win the club, draw trumps, cash the king of clubs, and exit with a club. It cannot matter what the opponents do next, says North. They dare not lead a club or a diamond; if they do, the contract is made.

Therefore, assume West wins the third round of clubs and leads a spade. When the jack is played from dummy, East wins, but, whatever he returns, the contract is in the bag because East is endplayed.

North insists South was guilty of negligence. Members of the jury, how say you: guilty or not guilty?

The jury: guilty as charged.

Live Color TV On Moon Jaunt Now Under Test

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 12 astronauts hope to find out today whether they will be able to treat the earthlings to live color television of their moon walk.

A television camera which has been giving trouble is to be plugged into their lunar lander atop a Saturn 5 rocket for a final test.

If the results are good, astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. and Alan L. Bean will count on transmitting live color pictures of the moon's bleak, cratered surface as they work on the Ocean of Storms.

If the camera fails, Conrad and Bean will carry a black and white camera like the one used by the Apollo 11 moonwalkers in July.

Ann Landers

Keeping Alcoholic In Straight Line Problem

Dear Ann Landers: I am fed up with your advice to wives of alcoholics that goes like this: "Have a little compassion. The man is sick. Alcoholism is an illness. Etc., etc., etc."

It's apparent that you have had no experience with alcoholism. Well, I have, so please listen. After 38 years of hauling my drunken bum out of hotels, motels, jails, hospitals and other women's bedrooms, I resent being told I lack compassion. If you think I'm hard-hearted, wait until you read the rest of this letter.

Three weeks ago I received a call from the police. They asked me to come to the morgue and identify a man they believed to be my husband. I recognized him immediately since he was in a prone position, which is the way I saw him most of his life.

I had tried kindness and compassion. It didn't work. I begged him to go to A.A. and even offered to go with him. He refused. He wouldn't see a counselor or a clergyman because they were all "fakes." He was no father, no husband, no provider, no human being. It took 38 years to figure out that compassion was not the answer. If I had it to do over I'd have thrown him out and let the sink or swim. — TELLING IT LIKE IT IS AND WISH YOU'D DO THE SAME

Dear Telling It: You have a valid point and I would not deny it. Not all approaches work for all people. Authorities have been rethinking the techniques for treating alcoholics since alcoholism has assumed epidemic proportions in this country. Many distinguished authorities now say that love and compassion fail, the alcoholic who refuses to accept counseling or medication, should be thrown out. They now believe that some drunks will straighten themselves out only when it is made abundantly clear that they are responsible for themselves — that no one will provide them with room and board, coddle them, clean up after them or make excuses for them to family, friends and the boss. So, the advice is now as follows: When love and compassion fail, throw the bum out.

Dear Ann Landers: There must be other women who get the silent treatment from their husbands. Why? Don't tell me some men are just naturally quiet. My husband, who is a physician, is considered brilliant and outgoing by everyone who knows him. Whenever we attend a medical meeting Ed just about takes over. He is on his feet challenging, presenting his views, and he asks more questions than anybody. The chairman always has a problem shutting him up. When we have company, Ed talks a blue streak. Yet, when the two of us are alone, he can't think of a single thing to talk about. If he didn't enjoy my company, why did he marry me? — Ignored Wife

Dear Wife: Obviously he didn't marry you because you were a great conversationalist. It must have been something else. Search your memory and maybe you'll come up with the answer.

Confidential to Impaled On The Horns Of A Dilemma: This is the original Do-It-Yourself project. No one can decide for you. My personal opinion, however, is that you'd be better off to pass up the one with "that certain something" and take the one who has something certain.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35c in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Governor Of Tennessee Dies In Car Mishap

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Frank G. Clement, an old-fashioned orator who once was the nation's youngest governor, has died in an auto accident at 49.

Clement, three-time governor of Tennessee, won national attention as keynote of the Democratic National Convention in 1956. Castigating the Republican administration in Washington, he asked over and over, "How long, America, oh how long?"

Clement's public career ended with his defeat by Republican Howard H. Baker Jr. in a race for the U.S. Senate in 1966. He had since practiced law.

He died Tuesday night in a head-on collision between his car and another near his home.

Experience Should Be Nixed Sometime

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Experience is said to be the best teacher. But it can also be a costly and even fatal teacher. The lessons from some experiences are too expensive for us to afford. The better part of wisdom sometimes is to avoid the experience and therefore the need of having to learn the bitter lesson. This requires the development of a sturdy ability to say no at the right time. For example, here are a few invitations which, if accepted, generally lead only to disaster or regret: "If the liquor is all gone, why don't we just all drive over to my place for an early breakfast?" "This looks like it may be a

Michigan Going To The Dogs If Solon Has Way

LANSING (AP) — Saying there is a national trend toward dog racing, Senate Majority leader Emil Lockwood has asked for a special Senate committee study of legalizing greyhound racing in Michigan. The House earlier this year defeated a dog racing proposal. "There is increasing interest in the state's permitting and legalizing greyhound racing," Lockwood's resolution says. "The trend among the states is to permit this activity."

The resolution adds that some opposition to dog racing "revolves around the allegation that criminal activities are an adjunct of such type of sport activity and this aspect . . . should be studied."

"An over-all review of the review, financial and control activities of this sport should be undertaken," it says.

Lockwood wants the Senate to name five members to check into the possibilities of legislation dealing with dog racing. The special committee budget would be $5,000.

MORALITY, RATIONALITY

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — More than seven of every ten Roman Catholics interviewed in a family planning survey here said they use contraceptives forbidden by their church.

The survey, conducted by a senior sociology lecturer at Durban's University College for Indians, indicated that Roman Catholics have the highest accidental pregnancy rate despite the fact that 78.3 per cent of those interviewed use contraceptives. According to the survey, Jewish and English-speaking Protestant couples are the most rational planners because they have no moral objection to contraceptives.

Motorcycle Deaths, Accidents Way Up

CHICAGO (AP) — A medical researcher says motorcycle makers should develop safety devices for their product.

This view was set forth by Dr. Charles H. Rasmus of Mount Clemens, Mich., in a paper presented Wednesday at the annual clinical assembly of osteopathic organizations.

Dr. Rasmus said there had been a sharp rise in the number of motorcycle accident deaths since 1960 because of large sales of inexpensive imported motorcycles in the $500 to $600 price range.

Before then, such deaths averaged about 500 a year. In 1968 there were 1,900 and in 1966 a peak of 2,043.

Dr. Rasmus quoted statistics showing that: —Last year there were 2.1 million registered motorcycles, compared with 102 million motor vehicles of all types.

—There were more than 200,000 motorcycle accidents in 1968, or one for every 10 motorcycles, compared with 2 million motor vehicle accidents, or one for every 50 cars.

—The death rate for motorcycles during 1968 was 23 per 100 million miles of travel, compared with 5.5 per 100 million miles for motor vehicles, including pedestrian deaths.

—Ninety per cent of motorcycle accident victims are under 25, while 80 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents involved persons over 25.

Dr. Rasmus described the motorcycle as "an unstable vehicle," and said:

"Because of the severity of motorcycle accidents due to the fact that the rider is completely unprotected, all manufacturers should, in addition to providing quality bikes at reasonable prices, develop some protective shield or roll bar to protect the rider's lower extremities, even if they are offered as optional equipment."

Dr. Rasmus said the number of deaths from motorcycle accidents decreases in states which require the wearing of a helmet, since most of the cycle deaths result from skull or brain injury.

Republican Has Election Vote 'All Doped Out'

BETHEL, N.Y. (AP) — The Democratic supervisor of the Town of Bethel lost a re-election bid by eight votes Tuesday after a campaign with one issue—a massive summertime rock music festival.

Daniel Amatucci had permitted the Woodstock Music and Art Festival to be held in Bethel. An estimated 300,000 young people descended on the tiny Catskill Mountain community and overwhelmed safety and sanitary facilities.

Amatucci lost 598-590.

His opponent, Republican George Neuhaus, was critical of the musical happening, where pot smoking and pep pills abounded.

The estimated 5.7 billion tons of salt in Great Salt Lake could supply the total industrial and domestic requirements of the United States for more than 200 years.

Local Control Of Schools Not Out: Milliken

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken — criticized by some who contend his education reform proposals would too greatly centralize school control—says none of his suggested changes will destroy local control.

The governor also condemned critics "who appear more interested in rhetoric than real reform."

In a letter to Lakeshore Public School Supt. Lionel Stacey, Milliken said:

"I believe very strongly that primary control should remain in local hands."

"The local districts should have maximum freedom in hiring teachers, in negotiating with their employees, in determining local curricula, in developing operating procedures and in other matters dealing with the general education of our children."

Milliken said local districts "should be relieved of concern for raising and distributing educational funds, running school buses and providing special educational programs which can better be handled on a regional basis. . . ."

Such programs, he said, "have proved frustrating and overly expensive to operate on the local level."

The Milliken letter was sent in response to a comment from Stacey published in the Benton Harbor News-Palladium.

Stacey, a former state representative, was quoted as saying that if the governor's reform program meant that local control of schools was lost completely, then "I'm against it."

Baldness Isn't All Bad: Doctor

LONDON (AP)—Relax, baldie. Those thinning locks do not indicate loss of virility.

That's the word from Focus, magazine of the Consumer Council, a British government agency.

According to a dermatologist quoted by the magazine, balding indicates that everything is normal. After all, the medico points out, eunuchs did not become bald.

But worry about baldness is a different matter.

"I get a lot of young men coming to see me," the dermatologist says. "It is, in its own way, a tragic procession."

"Many of them are pathetic. They come to tell me they fear they are growing bald. Many of them have become neurotic about it. They tell me they have failed in life; failed with girls; failed with jobs. They believe their baldness is the cause of their failure."

He says:

"People who are going bald should not rush off for a wig or a hairpiece." They should first see their doctor, or if necessary, a dermatologist, who will tell them if they have the common male type of baldness or a reversible type.

Unlocking Moon's Secrets Aim Of Astronaut Teams

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Why are the Apollo 12 astronauts and eight other crews going back to the moon in the next three years?

The main goal is scientific exploration—to unlock secrets of the origin of the moon, and perhaps the earth and the universe. Is it worth the risk?

The three astronauts who will fly Apollo 12—Charles Conrad Jr., Alan L. Bean and Richard F. Gordon Jr.—agreed in private interviews that it is.

"Apollo 11 proved that man can land on the moon," Conrad said. "Apollo 12 will start the detailed geological exploration of the lunar surface."

"We're starting the series we've been shooting for, and that's to explore the moon," he added. "Apollo 12 is the first one to carry a full-up scientific payload, and our training has been devoted not to the landing so much as it has to this exploration of the moon."

Conrad and Bean, who will do the moonwalking, plan to deploy a sophisticated set of instruments powered by the first atomic generator placed on the moon.

The devices are designed to relay continuous data from the Ocean of Storms for at least a year on such things as moonquakes, the solar wind and the wind's atmosphere and magnetic field.

The two moonmen also will collect carefully documented rock samples during more than seven hours outside their landing craft.

On later missions, astronauts will explore other points of geological interest, landing in the mountains and inside craters. The last four Apollo teams will have wheeled vehicles to roam several miles from their landing spot.

"Because we accomplished a landing on the moon didn't mean the end of the space program," said Gordon, who will orbit the moon while his companions are on the surface two weeks from now.

"We have a lot to learn about the moon. There will be more scientific knowledge gained on each flight. We would be remiss in not utilizing this capability."

Does science justify the risk of sending crews to the moon every four or five months?

Conrad: "I would like to think of it as not a risk. I would like to think that we've worked out a useful transportation system which allows us to explore the moon."

Gordon: "I think it is well worth the risk. Just the simple fact that the moon is there to be explored makes it worthwhile. You might ask was it worth the risk to build an airplane? In those days a lot of people probably said it wasn't worth the risk. But think where we are today because of it."

Bean: "We're going to be sending a lot of people to far-flung planets to explore them, to see what's there, to try to get a better understanding of ourselves, our environment, where the planets originated. And if you believe these things are worthwhile, then making a detailed exploration of the moon is worth whatever risk we have to take to achieve these ends."

Apollo 12 is to be launched Nov. 14 at 11:22 a.m. EST.

Wednesday the space agency successfully tested a color television camera that will permit Conrad and Bean to transmit the first live color TV from the lunar surface.

Social Pressures Used As Child's Smoke Screen

NEW YORK (AP) — Teen-agers in general think cigarettes are dangerous, but social pressures push four out of 10 into smoking them, a new study finds.

The teen years are crucial in the decision whether to smoke, the survey says. The greatest influence toward smoking is their friends, but many youngsters might choose not to smoke if parents, teachers, doctors and other adults set better examples, it adds.

The national survey of 1,562 teen-agers found that 65 per cent of smokers and 86 per cent of nonsmokers believe cigarettes cause lung cancer.

About half the smokers and 70 per cent of nonsmokers think it is "definitely or probably true" that cigarette smoking triples the risk of premature heart attack.

Young smokers said they did so because it "makes you feel like a big shot ... makes you feel like older ... makes you feel like one of the crowd," or that smoking relaxed them when they felt nervous, or helped when they were bored or depressed. Far more boys than girls thought smoking made them more attractive sexually.

The study conducted by Lieberman Research, Inc., last March and April was sponsored by the American Cancer Society with the findings released today at the society's annual meeting.

Each teen-ager was interviewed for about an hour. One third were 13 or 14 years old, another third 15 or 16, the rest 17 or 18.

Teen-agers are 50 per cent more likely to smoke if the adults, parents, teachers and others with whom they come in contact are smokers, but are almost 100 per cent more likely to smoke if their friends, brothers and sisters smoke, the study finds.

The youngsters are very much aware of cigarette commercials, and the antismoking messages being broadcast or printed, but see far more of the commercials for cigarettes, the survey says.

Another finding is that "a teen-ager is less apt to smoke if he has good rapport with his parents and they smoke, than if his parents don't smoke but he had bad rapport with them."

Teen-age smokers "are more adventurous, more experimental, more anxiety-ridden and more prone to reject the values of the Establishment. Smokers more than nonsmokers describe themselves as nervous, frustrated, depressed, rebellious, reckless, sexy, swingers, liking to live dangerously, living for the moment, and wanting to try new things."

Nonsmokers, the study says, "are happier, more sensible, more success oriented, more self-confident and more inclined to accept the values of the Establishment. Non smokers more than smokers describe themselves as happy, relaxed, clean-cut, cautious, ambitious, hard-working, intelligent and successful."

Scouts Hold Fall Camporee

Area Boy Scouts held their "Lunar Olympics" recently in a wooded area northwest of Hermansville. During the "Olympics" Scouts were tested and graded on skill, cooperation and leadership in several important Scouting areas.

The Rev. Charles Beckingham of Bark River and Jack Van Brocklin of Gladstone directed the three-day event better known as the Fall Camporee.

Following a long day of skill testing, the Scouts were treated to a traditional campfire dinner and a songfest led by Donald "Toby" Harris. During the dinner awards were presented to the winning patrols by Emerson Gage, Council Commissioner.

After dinner, Dave Macleod, new district scout executive, briefly described the worldwide scouting organization and stressed the importance of a Scout being prepared. Rev. Beckingham closed the evening's activities with a brief prayer.

An ecumenical service was held Sunday morning and the Fall Camporee ended a success. A standing ovation was given at the Saturday evening campfire for Ray Gurgall and the Hermansville troop who were hosts for this seasonal event.

American Dies In Kidnap Plot

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — The American businessman's son who was kidnaped and killed on a farm near Sao Paulo was already dead when his abductors demanded $12,500 ransom, Brazilian police say.

Authorities said Patrick Dolan, 18-year-old son of the vice president of Swift and Co. of Brazil, was kidnaped by two men while on his way to school last Thursday and was shot and buried on their farm a few miles west of the city.

Police kept the kidnaping secret in hopes of recovering the youth alive. But they found his body Wednesday and later announced the arrest of Jose Dias Rezende and his 25-year-old son, Jose Daniel Dias Rezende, an acquaintance of the victim.

They were charged with the kidnap-slaying.

Officers said one or both of the kidnapers picked up Dolan in a car as he waited for a bus to take him to the American School, where he was a senior. After killing him, police said, the Rezendes contacted his father, Richard J. Dolan, and demanded the $12,500 ransom.

Dolan, following instructions in notes and telephone calls, left the money in his car at a Sao Paulo cemetery. The kidnapers did not pick it up and later instructed him to put it in a garbage can near the city airport. They asked Monday for a second payment of $12,500, but did not say where to leave it and made no further contact with the family.

Police arrested the younger Rezende Tuesday night. They said he confessed, told them where they could find the body, and implicated his father. Officers arrested the father late Wednesday.

The youth's body probably will be flown to Kansas City, Mo., a consulate spokesman said. He said the family has relatives in Kansas City and St. Louis.

Silent Majority Given Challenge By Antiwar Unit

NEW YORK — (AP) — A spokesman for antiwar activists has challenged President Nixon to bring his "silent majority" of supporters into the open.

"We don't believe it exists," Joanna Misnik, New York coordinator of the Student Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, said Wednesday.

"We issue a challenge to you, President Nixon. If you believe a silent majority exists, we want to see it," she told a news conference. "Get it into the streets ... We demand your majority no longer be silent."

Miss Misnik, 25, said Nixon's policy speech Monday night "will result in more and more people getting involved" in demonstrations set for New York Nov. 14, Washington Nov. 13-14 and San Francisco Nov. 15 to protest U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Plumbers Not Going In Hole As Wages Zoom

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City's union plumbers have obtained a contract that will boost their income to a record $9.21 hourly by June of 1971, but the rank and file membership doesn't view the increase as being out of step with the times.

The majority of plumbers contacted in a survey refused to discuss how the new contract would affect their standard of living.

"I'm just trying to catch up," said Gene Hodges, a journeyman plumber.

Whatever differences the increase may make in the living standard of "John Q. Plumber," union officials and contractors agree the homeowner will feel the difference.

One of the city's largest service plumbing companies charged $12.75 for a service call before the new contract went into effect. A service call now is $14.00.

Trainload Of Art To Travel State

The Michigan "Artrain" — a revolutionary concept of bringing the arts closer to the people — was unveiled today by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Mrs. William G. Milliken, Michigan's first lady and general chairman of Michigan "Artrain," presented the six-foot prototype in the Riviera Foyer of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The train is expected to be ready to roll by Michigan Week in May, 1970, and will visit 68 Michigan cities in its first two years.

Four Cars

"Artrain" will be composed of four railroad passenger cars and a caboose, but it is not planned merely a gallery on wheels, said Mrs. Milliken. Rather, it will deal with the sound of art, with moments of creation, with primitive man as well as his modern counterpart. Visual exhibits made possible by electronics will fill at least one of the cars, while artists at work may be another feature of "Artrain."

Mrs. J. L. Hudson, Jr., chairman of the Steering Committee, said "this is an effort to enrich the lives of Michigan citizens by bringing directly to the community an entire spectrum of art forms from classic to mod — exhibits depicting the role of art in today's world. We would hope that 'Artrain' will be phased toward an exciting balance of art as an experience; an exposure; an involvement."

"Exciting Project"

Dr. Durward Varner, chancellor of Oakland University and chairman of the Michigan State Council for the Arts, said, "this is one of the most exciting projects ever to be undertaken by our group."

Each city or town visited will be asked to become involved by providing local citizens to staff the exhibit, to arrange displays of works by local artists, and to make certain the entire community has an opportunity to participate in this unique experience, Varner said.

The railroad equipment is being donated by the Chesapeake and Ohio, Grand Trunk Western and Penn Central Railroads. As a public service, the Michigan Railroads Association will arrange for movement of the train from city to city.

Teacher Group Wants No Part Of Parochialism

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Education Association asked a favor of Gov. William Milliken—then pledged to try and defeat his education reform package if it contains state aid to nonpublic schools.

Both developments came Wednesday at a news conference called by Terry Herndon, MEA executive director.

Herndon asked Milliken to investigate the installation of eavesdropping devices in the teachers' lounge of Carrollton Junior High School, Saginaw County.

"Under the state constitution the governor has the authority to conduct such an investigation and to take action to remove elective or appointive officials who may engage in such corrupt conduct in office," Herndon said.

Herndon said he assumed the governor could ask the attorney general to conduct the investigation. If there is no probe, he said, the association might go to the courts in a civil suit or file criminal charges.

He said the association "was not out for vengeance, but wanted to protect the rights of employees."

"If the bugging did occur, it certainly was reprehensible," Milliken commented.

The governor said the letter asking for the probe was just received Wednesday. It is under study by his staff, Milliken said, to determine whether it would be appropriate for the governor to intervene directly.

Speaking in opposition to parochialism, Herndon said the association hopes the governor's school aid bill package will be split so there can be a separate vote on parochialism.

"If parochialism is in, we would have to oppose the entire package," he said.

At a recent meeting of 350 association delegates, he noted, only one showed any sympathy at all for parochialism.

The association represents some 67,000 Michigan school teachers.

Man Says Kansas Owes Him Plenty

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Cameron K. Reed says Kansas may owe him $30 million.

Reed, president of the United Funds Inc., recently discovered a $500 bond issued by the territorial government of Kansas on May 14, 1859. Reed said he bought it from a friend for $25 about 20 years ago, then put it away and forgot it.

"At 10 per cent—the interest it was supposed to draw—the value of the bond doubles about every seven years," Reed said. "That makes it worth about $30 million."

However, Reed doesn't think he'll try to collect from the state. "I suppose I'll give it to the Kansas Historical Society," he said, "if it wants the thing."

Officer Arrests His Own Son, 17, For Vandalism

NORTHVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Police Chief George Scunzio Sr., has arrested his own son in the investigation of vandalism at Northville Central School.

George Jr., and Dennis J. Darby, both 17, were charged Wednesday with first-degree criminal mischief and freed on $1,000 bail.

Chief Scunzio was joined by state police investigators in the inquiry after $150,000 water damage was done Sept. 29 at the school in this small Adirondack foothills town.

THE FIRST MEETING of the Peninsula Waters Girl Scout Council was held Monday evening at the Northwoods Supper Club located outside Marquette. Senior Girl Scouts Attend Recent Scout Council Meet

MARQUETTE—For the first time in the history of Upper Peninsula Girl Scouting, five Senior Girl Scouts representing Marquette, Escanaba, Iron River and White Pine, attended a Girl Scout council meeting recently.

As part of the new, "Action 70," awareness program, which was spearheaded at last month's four-day National Convention of Girl Scouts of America in Seattle, Wash., the girls were allowed to sit in on the first Peninsula Waters Girl Scout Council meeting, held at the Northwoods Supper Club Monday evening.

Mrs. Richard Potter, Ishpeming, presided at the business session which was preceded by a dinner and followed by a reception for new staff members, including Mrs. Maude Herman, Jackson, newly named executive director of the council; Miss LaVerne Korman, Chicago, Ill., field director, and Mrs. Robert Finley, Escanaba, office services director.

"Action 70," Using the triennial theme, "Awareness-Action," Mrs. Potter introduced the 75 council members present to the new, youthful and enthusiastic innovation in Scouting — "Action 70."

"Action 70," Mrs. Potter explained, is a nationwide effort to become more aware of prejudices and to take action to build better relationships among persons of all ages, religions, races and nationalities. An outgrowth of a nationwide polling of Senior Girl Scouts' views, which a 12-girl team compiled, it allows girls to take an increasing role in Scouting leadership.

Racial Problems
In other national convention happenings, Mrs. Potter said, "Every issue confronting the council in some way involved a racial problem. The U. P. has few problems compared to other parts of the United States, and I hope we will be prepared to face racial decisions when and if they come to our Scouting program."

Mrs. Potter's remarks were in reference to a group of Seattle black women who criticized the organization for "lack of full participation by blacks in Scouting." Trigger to the black women's ire was a 100-voice choir that performed

Retired Teachers Hold Final Meet Of Season

The Delta County Chapter of the Michigan Retired Teachers held their last meeting of the fall season Tuesday at the Central United Methodist Church. The noon luncheon was prepared and served by the women of the church.

Mrs. Roy Swaby presided at the business meeting. Ruth Ford presented the bills pending in the Michigan Legislature which are of special interest to the group. A discussion followed the presentation.

New members introduced were: Miss Leontine Johnson of Bark River who taught in Seattle, Wash., and Miss Olive McClinchy of Nahma Junction who taught in the Nahma Schools.

Program chairman Myrtle Beatson introduced Mrs. Edward Edick who presented a slide program on the trip the Edicks took to Mexico.

The next meeting of the chapter will be held in Gladstone the first Tuesday of April, 1970. An invitation is extended to all retired teachers to join the group.

Mrs. Viau Recalls Oldtime Bark River

Mrs. Harmidas Viau, the former Mary Gauthier of Schaffer, celebrated her 90th birthday Thursday, Oct. 30, at the Ragner Ogren Nursing Home at Rte. 2, Bark River. Her husband died in 1962.

Mary Gauthier, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Felix Gauthier of Schaffer was born in St. Jerome, Quebec, Canada. About that time her father came to Barkville and worked for the late George Douglas who was jobbing on his land a mile north of the town.

No School
Gauthier's family joined him in 1881 and they lived on one of J. B. Frechette's farms on the East Road for eight years when they moved to their own farm near Tesch. Mrs. Viau volunteered, "There was nothing in Schaffer then, no school, no church and only a couple of houses."

Mary Viau began school at the age of four. Her brother carried her through the snow to school which was on what is now the St. George parking lot. One of her teachers was Mary Gwinn, probably remembered because of an accident.

Struck By Train
Seems a man was visiting people in a house south of the tracks and had left his horse and buggy on the north side. Hearing a train he ran to hold his horse but was struck by the train and killed. This was directly in front of the old Bergman home.

Reminiscing, Mrs. Viau said, "There was a pond in the hollow below the church hill and the Douglas boys, Louis, Ed, Ben and George, had a raft and gave kids rides. Below the hill Barkville was all swamp."

"The only building south of the tracks was the depot. People from the country hauled timber to town and the south side of the tracks was all one big landing with timber piled high. South of the landing was all woods and swamp."

Warned People
Of the fire of 1888 which practically destroyed the town, Mrs. Viau related, "A train going through spotted the fire and blew its whistle to rouse the people otherwise many would have burned to death."

10 Children

The Viaus had 10 children: Dona, Rte. 2, Bark River; Wallace, Lawrence, Harry, Mrs. Walter (Helen) Caron, Escanaba; Mrs. Sarah Nelson, Flat Rock; Mrs. Edward (Verna) DeLoughary, Powers; and twins, Edwin of Escanaba, and John of Rte. 2, Bark River. A daughter, Mrs. Cordie (Dora) Kincaid, Escanaba, died in 1967. She has 45 grandchildren, 51 great-grandchildren and one great, great grandchild.

Area Nurses Attend Annual Meet In Lansing

Approximately 1,300 RN's from throughout the state attended the annual nurse's convention held at the Jack Tar Hotel in Lansing.

The house of delegates voted to adhere to the, "no strike," policy but as a last resort mass resignation could bring administrators to the bargaining table.

Delegates cited differing views as: What can nurses do when a hospital administrator refuses to recognize the association as the bargaining agent? Teachers in various areas lost community support in strikes and children can also be sent home during strikes but patients continue to need 24 hour care.

Also during the, "heated" five hour session, delegates refused to go on record supporting any legislative proposal for legalized abortions by a standing vote of 64 to 67.

A restructuring of the organization of MNA which was proposed by the Board of Directors was passed by the house of delegates. The division of MNESO (bargaining unit) will become one of the four major sections.

Local nurses elected to state offices are: Elizabeth Nelson, nominating committee of MNESO and Mrs. Neomi Hult, member at large of office nurse section.

Delta District Nurses representatives were Elizabeth Nelson, Naomi Hult, Geraldine VanEnkevort, Karen Kell and JoAnn Good.

AF Retraining Program Could Help Civilians

EAST LANSING (AP) — Retraining programs used by the Air Force for those who break the law may point the way toward better correction techniques for civilian offenders, says an Air Force major.

Maj. Floyd Kennedy, a behavioral scientist and chief of the analysis division of the 320th Retraining group at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver, Colo., spoke before a meeting of law enforcement and corrections officials at Michigan State University Tuesday night.

Kennedy said he made no claim that the Air Force was the first to think of the new concepts, "but we do claim to be among the first to have the courage to try new ideas."

About 70 per cent of all former convicts return to prison as repeat offenders, he said.

Kennedy said the retraining course, in effect since 1962, has a much better record of success. He reported 75 per cent of the retrainees return to duty and 80 per cent ultimately receive honorable discharges.

Recent Hike In Newsprint May Not Be Realized

NEW YORK (AP) — A possibility has arisen that the recently announced $5-a-ton increase in the price of newsprint might be cut back to $4, the American Newspaper Publishers Association reported.

This is the result of action by Southland Mills which last week announced that its increase would be $4 a ton to $151.

An ANPA spokesman recalled that when major producers announced a $5-a-ton boost last January, Southland went up only $4. Other producers then scaled down their increases to $4.

Bowater Sales Co. initiated the third round of newsprint price hikes in two years last Sept. 24 with a $5 raise to $152 a ton, effective Jan. 1.

Other producers followed, with Boise Cascade Corp. and Great Northern Paper Co. the latest to join.

Earlier, increases had been announced by Price Co., Abitibi Paper Co., Consolidated-Bathurst Newsprint Ltd., Oox Newsprint, Inc., Crown Zellerbach Corp., International Paper Sales Co., MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., and Domtar Newsprint Ltd.

With the exception of Southland, prices range from $152 on the East Coast and inland to $147 on the West Coast.

March Permit Denied By FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has rejected a permit for a mass march from the Capitol to the White House Nov. 15 to culminate what is being billed as the largest antiwar protest in history.

Only "a small symbolic parade" will be allowed, the Justice Department announced Tuesday night, citing "reliable reports" some demonstrators plan to "foment violence or to stage confrontations."

A department spokesman claimed "coordinated and effective law enforcement would be impossible" if "any serious violence" should erupt along the Pennsylvania Avenue route.

Immediately, the New Mobilization Committee, sponsor of the anti-Vietnam protests planned for Nov. 13-15, denied the charge and accused department officials of negotiating in bad faith.

Meanwhile, some demonstration leaders suggested Tuesday their protest would be swelled by new recruits unhappy with what they termed "the hard line" taken by President Nixon in his Monday night Vietnam policy speech.

Trend Changing, People Picking Up Litter Now

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — There are strange sights in the streets, parks and camping grounds of the municipal area these days. People are picking up cans instead of throwing them away.

In the past few months, 7,000 can gleaners have rid the landscape of 6 million metal containers.

Cans are pouring into a reception depot in suburban Commerce at the rate of 36,000 a day.

The gimmick: The cans are the aluminum variety, popular for packaging such things as beer, and the Reynolds Metals Co. is paying half a cent apiece for them.

A club of altruists culls cans from apartment building trash and uses the proceeds for holiday dinners for the poor.

Youngsters comb parks, highways and streets to earn spending money.

There are even a few people picking up cans because they think an uncanny scene is prettier.

"A company such as ours has a desire to try to prevent litter and aid beautification, because we do manufacture aluminum cans and a great many of our cans are in use in the Los Angeles area," said William Yates, Pacific Coast regional manager for Reynolds.

"We also want the metal back. We don't believe aluminum is in inexhaustible supply."

The cans are melted down and the metal reused. Yates said the company is breaking even.

Started in Los Angeles as an experiment, the great can hunt may extend to other cities, he added.

'Fatso' Asking Court To Lift Cyclamate Ban

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man who used cyclamates to cut his weight from 550 to 450 pounds in two months filed suit in U.S. District Court Wednesday to lift a ban against the artificial sweetener.

Leo Rossi, 32, Daly City motorcycle dealer, and six others, filed the class action in behalf of overweight persons and diabetics.

The suit asked that a three-judge panel declare unconstitutional the section of the law on which Robert Finch, Secretary of Health Education and Welfare, issued the ban.

The suit claims "The interpretation is that any food additive that causes cancer in animals or humans under any conditions in any amount is not safe for human consumption."

An attorney said expert testimony would be offered showing cyclamates are safe for human consumption.

Under the ban, beverages containing cyclamates are to be withdrawn from sale no later than Jan. 1, and such sweetened foods by Feb. 1.

Finding 'Nesting Place' For Big Bird New Problem

By VERN HAUGLAND
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 747, Boeing's biggest bird, makes its airline debut next year. But airport officials fear they cannot provide nests large enough to handle the luxury jetliner.

"They will produce instant traffic peaks on the ground, more passengers, more cargo, more visitors, more terminal public use and parking facility needs, more clogged access roads, and no less aircraft noise," says one worried official.

300 - 500 Passengers

The 747—capable of carrying between 300 and 500 passengers and twice the cargo of the now popular 707—will be first put into commercial service by Pan American World Airways.

Pan Am's chairman, Harold E. Gray, sees less of a problem. "Any terminal that today can handle two 707 aircraft or DC8 aircraft within the same time span—say about 15 minutes—can equally well handle a 747," he said.

But Warren H. Hawes, director of economic services for Airport Operators Council International, Inc., the non-profit trade association of governmental bodies owning or operating major airports throughout the world, disagrees.

"The immediate problem is that the 747 will be in service before the airports are ready for it," he said.

Price Runs High

Pan Am paid a half-billion-dollars for 25 747s in 1966 and later increased the order to 33 planes, costing a total of $765 million.

Thus Pan Am had a large say in shaping of the 747. Its first planes will carry 58 persons in a forward first class compartment, and 304 in economy class. The jetliner will include a lounge on an upper deck, reached by spiral staircase from the main deck, and a bar.

The four-man flight crew is housed forward of the lounge, 29 feet above the ground. The plane's tail is taller than the average six-story building.

The 747 has 10 doors, six galleys and 12 lavatories, and will carry 14 stewardesses.

In preparation for the super-jets, the airline industry is investing hundreds of millions of dollars in new computerized reservations systems and automated ticket facilities, and is working toward an automated baggage delivery system.

Other Big Buyers

Other big buyers of the 747 include United Air Lines, with 12 of the $20 million airplanes on order, and Trans World Airlines, with 15 747s on order.

Altogether, 27 airlines have placed orders with Boeing for 183 planes.

The International Civil Aviation Organization, a United Nations agency, estimates 747s will be operating at 106 airports by the end of 1973, and at 47 of them by next year.

The International Air Transport Association has estimated that only 33 airports will be equipped to its recommended standards by the end of 1970, however.

Demos May Tap Richard Austin For State Post

DETROIT (AP) — Top Democratic party officials are eyeing Richard H. Austin, who was defeated by a margin of some 7,000 votes in the Detroit mayoral election, as a possible candidate for lieutenant governor or secretary of state in 1970.

"By his very strong race for election, Dick clearly becomes one of the three or four or five persons" currently mentioned as possible candidates for either of the posts, said James McNeely, state party chairman. "He's bound to be prime material for consideration," McNeely added.

Party sources revealed that Austin's name was prominent among those of several other Negroes discussed as potential candidates in a "black caucus" meeting in October in Flint.

Others, it was learned, were State Sen. Coleman A. Young of Detroit; party Vice Chairman Kenneth Hyton, and Walter Elliott, an assistant secretary of state. Billie S. Farnum, a former Michigan auditor general and congressman, who is white, also has been mentioned as a possible candidate.

Young said Wednesday that he doesn't think there is any question that Austin has become a "major political force in the state — possibly in the nation."

Austin, 56, is the first Negro in Detroit history to survive a primary campaign and run for the mayorship in a general election.

Austin returned to his job as Wayne County auditor, to which he was elected in 1966.

He garnered 250,651 of the unofficial vote in Tuesday's mayoral election. Roman S. Gibbs, Wayne County sheriff, won the election with 257,714.

McNeely said the statewide governor's race lies too far in the future to predict possible favorites for the lieutenant governorship or secretary of state positions. The gubernatorial primary election will be held next August, with the Democratic State Convention about two weeks later nominating party candidates for lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general.

Teachers Favor No NSV Buttons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Secret, No NSV," read the label buttons an army of grade-school children soon will be wearing in the Mar Vista district of West Los Angeles.

What do they mean? Just ask the kids.

"No narcotics, shoplifting, vandalism," they'll say.

It's part of the effort at Grandview Boulevard School to involve its 950 pupils in a voluntary antinarcotics, anticrime education program which begins Dec. 5.

"We've been protective of children in grade school," said Principal Wendell Gist. "We're sending them to junior high unprepared for the realities that many of them must face."

"The only reason we put the word 'secret' on the buttons is that we want people to ask them about it," Gist said.

DRUG SCRIPTS

W. J. Bisdee
The United States Pharmacopeia, The National Formulary, The United States Dispensatory
Sound impressive? They should... for these are the books found in every pharmacist's professional library that sets the standards for American pharmacy and American pharmaceuticals.
Perhaps you have puzzled over the letters U.S.P. or N.F. on drug packages. These letters are the guarantee of the drug manufacturer that the product in question meets the rigid standards of the above mentioned books. If the letters appear and the drug is not up to standard the manufacturer is guilty of misbranding and liable to prosecution and severe penalties.
The U.S.P. — N.F. — and the Dispensatory are under constant revision. Also under constant revision is the prescription inventory at GROOS DRUG STORE... 1007 Ludington St. Here you will find the latest medications as well as the staples. Bring us your prescriptions. Savings Unit Making Plans For Open House

The Savings Assurance Agency will be holding an Open House Friday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. in their new office building located at 234 S. Cedar St. in downtown Manistique.

Coffee and refreshments will be served and favors available for everyone who visits the new office quarters. Owner - Agent Bill Hentschell said.

The agency moved into the new office building Oct. 25, almost five months to the day after ground - breaking ceremonies on May 26. The 30 x 80 ft. building utilizes 2,400 sq. feet of space and is of cement block and stone construction. A 24 x 30 ft. carport for employee parking is attached to the rear of the structure.

The building interior is fully carpeted with wood-paneled and brick walls. A huge 39 x 22 general office room first greets the visitor and leads to a private, half-glass walled smaller 15 x 17 office. The private office features a wall of dolomite from the Cooks area. A storage room and laboratory open from a hallway leading to the carport.

The building's exterior features a steeldeck roof with shingle shawl canopy. Hentschell designed the building to his own specifications.

The Savings Assurance Agency was purchased by William L. Hentschell in January of 1962 from the State Savings Bank, who started the business in 1917. Hentschell maintained offices adjacent to the bank until Dec. of 1966 when he moved to offices at 212 S. Maple St. From Maple St. the Agency moved to their new quarters and conducted their first day of business in the new location on Oct. 27.

Hentschell's father, the late R. G. Hentschell, was associated with the agency until his death in Oct. of 1967. The present staff consists of Mrs. Beverly Jahn, agent-manager; Mrs. Mabel Patz and Mrs. Lillian Lindberg, clerk - typists; Mrs. Jane Aller, secretary; and Betty Smethurst, solicitor.

The firm represents all stock companies including Aetna Insurance Company; Continental Casualty; Continental National American Group; Crum and Forster Insurance Companies; Fireman's Fund, American Group; Hartford Fire Group; Transamerica Group; Wolverine; and American General Life.

Hentschell is also certified as a life, health and accident underwriter. His son, Bill Jr. who is currently serving in the U.S. Navy, plans to enter the business after completing his Navy duty and finishing college. Before entering service, Bill Jr. was a student at Michigan State University.

Indiana Coach Drops Boycotting Gridders

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Coach John Pont of Indiana University dismissed 10 Negro varsity players Wednesday when they boycotted football drills a second straight day.

The other four Negroes on the varsity squad returned to practice and Pont said they would play Saturday against Iowa.

All 14 black players missed Tuesday's practice.

Pont said his longtime personal policy is to dismiss any player with two unexcused absences from practice.

While reports circulated that several boycotting players were upset because they think they

Three Lettermen Back At Perkins

PERKINS — With three of the top six scorers back from last year's league and district championship team, the Perkins Yellowjackets appear to be heading into another winning season.

The Yellowjackets, coached by Verne Nelson, will begin the 1969-70 campaign on Monday, Nov. 17, on the road at Grand Marais.

Joe Couillard, Ken Simonsen and Bob VanDamme are the only returning lettermen back from last year's squad, which posted a 14-5 record during season and tournament play. All other players on the squad are up from the junior varsity.

Couillard, Simonsen and VanDamme were Perkins' first, third and sixth leading scorers last year. Couillard tossed in 395 points while Simonsen

Annual Banquet Fetes Gridders

BARK RIVER — Bark River-Harris High School, champions of the Wolverine Conference, played host to the annual conference banquet held Tuesday night.

Gordon LeDuc, athletic director and head basketball coach at Holy Name High School in Escanaba, was the guest speaker for the evening. "Building of a Champion" was the theme of LeDuc's address. Anecdotal examples concerning members of his 1969 state championship Bishop Baraga team effectively demonstrated those qualities necessary to become a champion.

Pembine Coach Nick DelSanto, president of the conference, presented awards and named the All-Conference team. Selected to the offensive team were Russ Pirlot of Bark River, quarterback; Dick Smith of Powers, Mike Huempfer of Pembine and Len Olson of Bark River, halfbacks; Tony Westlake of Bark River, center; Tim Fournier of Bark River, Don Strohl of Bark River, and Dave Behren of Powers, guards; Kim Riedy of Powers, Joe Shiverski of Bark River, and Tom Shiverski of Bark River, ends.

Defensive honors went to Strohl, Tom Shiverski and Tom Lippens of Bark, ends; Westlake, Behrend and Fournier, guards; Huempfer and Mark Veaser of Powers, linebacks; Smith, Bob White of Pembine and Dan Veaser of Bark River, safeties.

Players receiving honorable mention were Lee Vincent of Powers, Roger Russ of Pembine, Terry Durdsall of Pembine, Don Sharkey of Powers, Bob Buchner of Pembine, Loren Veaser of Bark River, Kim Huempfer of Pembine, Gary Brunngraber of Rock, Jim Bruce of Bark River and Bob Kristoff of Pembine.

Charles Pearson, principal of Bark River-Harris High School, acted as toastmaster for the event and Rev. Thomas P. Dunleavy of Bark River gave the invocation and benediction.

Unbeaten Bison Retain Ranking

By The Associated Press

Rampaging North Dakota State remained a solid favorite for the top spot, while Montana and Delaware gained ground today in the weekly Associated Press small college football poll.

The unbeaten Bisons, who thundared past Northern Iowa 41-13 last weekend for their eighth straight victory, drew 10 of the 14 first-place votes and 250 points in the balloting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Montana, which nudged rival Montana State 7-6 for its eighth straight, moved up one notch to second with 209 points.

Delaware, 6-1, roared all the way from seventh to third on the strength of a 44-0 blasting of strong Rutgers, and Arkansas State, 5-1, jumped from 11th to fourth after turning back Lamar Tech 20-0.

Akron, 6-2, moved up three spots to fifth although it had trouble putting down Central Michigan 9-6.

Alcorn A&M, 5-0-1, dropped from second to sixth after a 23-23 deadlock with Arkansas AM&N and New Mexico Highlands, 6-0-1, was seventh, up two spots, after a 37-0 coast past Western State of Colorado.

Louisiana Tech and Texas A&I dropped out of contention for the No. 1 spot after each suffered their first loss of the season — both by one point.

Tech, 5-1, bowed to Southern Mississippi 24-23 and slipped from fifth to eighth, while Texas A&I, 6-1, plunged from fourth to a ninth-place tie with Wittenberg after a 13-12 loss to Sull Ross State.

Wittenberg, 6-0, advanced from 15th to 10th with a 45-0 trouncing of Bucknell.

Rounding out the second 10 were No. 11 Abilene Christian, No. 12 Northern Arizona, No. 13 East Tennessee, No. 14 Western Carolina, No. 15 Colorado State College, No. 16 Sacramento State, No. 17 Humboldt State, No. 18 Indiana, Pa., No. 19 Tampa and No. 20 Indiana State.

Redskins Prepare For Season Debut

HERMANSVILLE — Sixteen candidates, including two returning lettermen, are drilling daily at Hermansville High School in preparation for the Redskins' season opener against Bark River at home on Friday, Nov. 21.

For the second season in a row, the Redskins will go into the basketball season with only one starter returning and under a new coach. Hermansville will be coached this season by Dennis Baratonio, who took over after Dwight Castelaz resigned to accept a position at Norway High School.

The 1969-70 Redskins will be built around 5 foot 10 inch John Dani, who is only a junior this year but was a starter on last year's team, scoring 172 points and picking up 91 assists.

The other letter winner back from last year's squad is Steve Framarin, who scored 33 points and hauled in 75 rebounds as the sixth man a year ago. A third letterman, Keith LaRoche, decided to give up basketball this season.

Other candidates for the team include senior George Maule; juniors Tim Faccio and Eugene Bellmore; sophomores Mike Maule, Greg St. Juliana and Jeff Stout; and freshmen John Faccio, Dave Malone, Lyle Schoen, David Arnold, Brian LeBombard, Bob Nelson and Jim Paquin.

The Redskins will lack size this season, Framarin being the tallest player at an even 6 feet. Tim McClure, a junior transfer student, will be eligible in the second semester and at 6 feet 1 inch will be a welcome addition to the rebounding corps in the latter half of the season.

Gone from last year's team, which posted a 10-9 record on the season, are Rick Arduin, Larry Raiche, Marc Maga and Tom Menard. Maga was the team's top scorer with 304 points while Raiche followed with 276 and Arduin chipped in with 275.

"The boys have shown hustle and desire, and that is important in winning," said Baratonio. "They are working hard and will give a good account of themselves on the court this year."

Baratonio looks for the Skyline Conference race to be one of the best Class D conferences in the Upper Peninsula. He feels defending champion Powers will be strong along with Republic, Champion, Carney, Channing and National Mine.

"It will be a real dog fight for the top spot," said the new coach.

The Hermansville schedule: Nov. 21—Bark River Nov. 26—at Carney Dec. 2—at Powers Dec. 5—Pembine Dec. 12—Republic Dec. 16—at Channing Dec. 19—Felch Jan. 6—Champion Jan. 9—at National Mine Jan. 13—Carney Jan. 16—at Pembine Jan. 23—Powers Jan. 27—at Bark River Feb. 6—at Republic Feb. 13—at Champion Feb. 20—at Channing Feb. 24—at Felch Feb. 27—National Mine

McLain Surprised At Getting Award

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Tiger pitching ace Denny McLain expressed surprise Wednesday at learning that he had been selected as the winner of the American League's Cy Young Award for the second straight year.

McLain, who shared the award with Baltimore's Mike Cuellar said he thought Cuellar would get the award alone. It was the first time the coveted pitching honor had gone to two players and the first time any American Leaguer had won it twice.

"Last year was easy," McLain said of winning the award for his 31 victory season with the 1968 World Champion Tigers. "This time, I thought sure they'd go with the pennant winner."

McLain finished last season with a 24-9 record.

Cuellar, McLain Tie For Cy Young Award

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in the history of balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America a major award wound up in a tie today when Mike Cuellar of Baltimore and Denny McLain of Detroit each received 10 votes for the 1963 American League Cy Young Award.

The other votes of the 24-man committee, two from each league city, went to Jim Perry of Minnesota, who got three, and Dave McNally of Baltimore, who received one.

The Cy Young winner in the National League, announced last week, was Tom Seaver of the New York Mets, who topped both majors with 25 victories. Seaver received 23 of the 24 votes in the National League.

McLain was a unanimous winner of the award in 1962 when he won 31 games. Bob Gibson also scored a 24-0 shutout in the National in 1962.

"I'm surprised," said McLain in San Jose, Calif. "I thought sure they'd go with the pennant winner."

The award, conceived by Ford Frick, former baseball commissioner, originally went to the outstanding pitcher in the major leagues. In 1967 the writers voted to present an award to the outstanding pitcher in each league.

The closest thing to a tie came in 1958 when a 15-man committee gave Bob Turley of the New York Yankees five votes, Warren Spahn of Milwaukee four and Lew Burdette of Milwaukee and Bob Felt of Pittsburgh, each three.

McLain, sharing the laurels, was the first American Leaguer to repeat. Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers won it three times. McLain had a 24-9 won-lost record for the Tigers and a 2.80 earned run average. His nine shutouts led the league.

Jack Lang, secretary-treasurer of the writers association, said there were no tie-breaking provisions. The secret ballot is conducted by mail with only

Outdoor Sports

By Bob Gregg

No more than thirty feet ahead of me, a monster brown trout slowly grabbed my K. O. Wiggler spoon and hung vertically for an instant, as if trying to figure out why there was a sudden pressure wrenching his jaw. Then, finding out he was a hooked fish, he abandoned the picture book jumping and ran right at me like a runaway freight train.

I reacted spontaneously. "Bob, Bob," I screamed as my spinning rod began to whip frantically. I was calling for my fishing partner Bob Banks of Escanaba who was upstream to come and help me.

The big brown shot by me and I made a frantic grab with my small, inadequate, landing net. A strong drag and a stiff pole stopped his downstream run after I missed him with my net. He cut upstream for a few feet and made a short dive under a big boulder. I gave him some line, I didn't want it to break.

Approaching the thrashing brown from behind I swept him up in the net before he knew what happened. The battle had just begun.

He immediately broke through my flimsy net and hung thrashing with the hook in his mouth caught in the netting. I wrestled him to shore.

It was a beautiful fish. The biggest brown trout I had ever seen, let alone caught. My fishing partner had arrived on the scene and said it was the biggest brown he had ever seen.

The place was the Days River last Sunday afternoon. Banks and I had stopped there after a disappointing morning at Thompson.

We had gone to Thompson, because my reliable sources of information told me the salmon were really starting to hit. They weren't wrong.

My luck was running short, however, and after losing the three large salmon I hooked I decided to call it quits and head for home.

After stopping for a cup of coffee to warm my half-frozen body I agreed with Bob's suggestion that a stop at the Days River might be worthwhile. I had seen several nice rainbow and a few coho in the Days just a few days before so I figured our chances of picking up a nice fish or two were good.

They were, before the afternoon was over I had caught three huge browns weighing a total of 31 pounds. The best afternoon of trout fishing I've ever had.

The biggest brown weighed a whopping 16 pounds, 2 ounces. He was a hooked-jawed male 33 inches long with a girth of 20½ inches. Second largest, and the best battler of the three, was a hooked-jawed male of 8 pounds even. The smallest fish I caught that afternoon was a beautiful silver-colored female weighing close to 7 pounds. It was quite a day.

I've been told by fish biologist Dave Johnson of the Department of Natural Resources that the fish I caught could have been the result of a planting of 15,000 browns in Little Bay de Noc in 1967. If this is true then an annual stocking of brown trout in Little Bay de Noc in heavy numbers could produce a fishery that would make the coho salmon fishery in our area seem dull by comparison.

Earlier this year, Cliff Long, district fish biologist for the DNR, told me that he felt heavy plantings of brown trout would create a terrific fishery in Little Bay de Noc. "The only thing holding back this program is the lack of fish for planting," he said.

Brown trout made up a small 1.5 per cent of the total fish stocked in Michigan waters this year. They are a neglected species of fish which has, over the years, given great sport to Michigan anglers.

The Department of Natural Resources would be doing the sportsmen of the Escanaba-Gladstone area a great favor if they stocked brown trout instead of nothing but coho in Little Bay de Noc. The coho create a fair seasonal fishery, but browns remain year-round.

I know I would rather catch a live, battling, 10-pound brown, than a dying DDT ridden coho that must be snagged to be caught. How about you?

I've been told by Keith Pratt, head biologist at the Thompson Fish Hatchery, that brown trout and coho salmon cost the same amount of money to raise in the hatchery. This information, plus the fact that browns survive spawning and coho do not, make the brown trout a cheaper fish to raise in return for the fishery it creates.

Small stockings over the past few years have proven that brown trout grow as fast as coho in the Great Lakes, especially Lake Michigan. The DNR is suffering from a headache known as "coho fever" and one cure is a pain reliever called "brown trout."

By The Associated Press
Coach Red Kelly of the Pittsburgh Penguins was doing a slow burn.

The Penguins had just outplayed the Detroit Red Wings. The Red Wings admitted it. The statistics proved it: Pittsburgh outshot Detroit 36-18.

But in the space of three minutes at the end of the first period and into the second, Detroit blistered the net with three goals and hung on to defeat Pittsburgh 4-2 Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Chicago beat New York 3-1, Montreal tied Minnesota 2-2, St. Louis tied Boston 4-4 and Los Angeles swept past Toronto 6-2.

"They worked their heads off," Kelly said of his Penguins. "But sometimes I think we treat them like cousins. We start off well and then make the boobies."

"We carried the play," he said, his soft voice rising. "We carried the play all the way. What's the use of carrying the play if you don't score and if the puck ends up in our nets?"

The Red Wings got only one shot on goalie Les Binkley in the first 15 minutes of the game, only five in both the first and second periods.

But Gary Unger, fast becoming a thorn in Pittsburgh's flesh, intercepted a pass in front of the Penguin net with 57 seconds remaining in the period and drove it past Binkley.

"He did the same thing against us Sunday night," Kelly said. "And there's no excuse for it."

With only 24 seconds gone in the second period, Gordie Howe wiggled away the puck from Val Fonteyne and slid a pass to Frank Mahovlich who scored, the puck bouncing off Binkley's glove into the net.

"That goal...I didn't particularly get upset about that one," Kelly said. "It was the next one that upset me."

"We have a play on face off," he continued. "It's man to man. But one guy lets a man loose, a defenseman who is supposed to be on the left side is on the right and a defenseman who is supposed to be on the right is on the left. We give the puck to them."

The third goal, coming only a minute after the second, was by Bruce MacGregor, the man who got loose. He took a pass from Nick Libet and Gary Bergman across the mouth of the goal and drilled it past Binkley who was screened out.

As the Penguins continually applied pressure, goalie Roger Crozier stopped shot after shot, more sensationally.

Jean Pronovost and Tracy Pratt scored for the Penguins before Pete Stenkowski added the finishing touches for the Red Wings with an unassisted goal.

Things are beginning to look up for the Chicago Black Hawks. Not only is Bobby Hull in town and apparently ready to begin playing hockey, but Stan Mikita has notched his first goal of the season.

Mikita's No. 1 started the Hawks off to a 3-1 victory over the New York Rangers Wednesday night, giving Chicago its third victory of the National Hockey League season.

Tony Esposito starred in goal for Chicago, kicking out 30 New York shots. He lost his shutout in the final minutes when Bob Nevin's shot bounced off a Hawk defenseman and into the net.

By then, Chicago was in control. After Mikita's goal put the Hawks in front in the second period, Kim Pappin scored off a picture pass from Dennis Hull and rookie Gerry Pinder hit in the third period.

Yvan Courmoyer, back in Montreal's line-up after missing two weeks with a broken nose, scored in the last 1½ minutes to give the Canadiens their deadlock with Minnesota.

The North Stars' Cesare Manigao faced 43 Montreal shots and protected a 2-1 edge built on second period goals by Bill Goldsworthy and Billy Collins until Courmoyer tied it.

Jacques Lemaire scored in the opening minute for Montreal.

Phil Goyette rallied St. Louis from a two-goal deficit and the Blues tied Boston. Goyette scored one goal and assisted on two others while Larry Keenan scored twice for the West Division team.

Rookie Jim Harrison's third-period goal tied it for the Bruins after Ron Anderson had converted a Goyette pass for a short-lived St. Louis lead.

Los Angeles erupted for five straight goals in the first and second periods and broke a three-game losing streak at the expense of Toronto. Dave Keon produced both of the Leafs' goals.

After Keon gave Toronto an early 1-0 lead, Dennis Hextell and Ross Lonsberry put the Kings in front 2-1 at the end of the opening stanza. Eddie Shack, Dale Rolfe and Bill Flett clicked for Los Angeles in the middle period, two of the goals resulting from power plays.

Keon's second goal of the game and sixth of the season came late in the second period and Skip Krake closed out the scoring for the Kings in the finale.

Watch C + Everyone, Time Issue On Again

LANSING (AP)—An attorney general's opinion has cleared the way for another try at putting Michigan on daylight savings time.

Sen. Raymond Dzendzel, D-Detroit, one of the leaders of the almost successful fight for uniform time the last time around, asked the opinion from Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Dzendzel asked since the issue already has been subject to a referendum and was voted down by the people whether either state or federal law prohibits the use of initiatory petition for a second try.

Kelley said there would be nothing illegal with such an initiative position. Voters a year ago narrowly defeated daylight savings time. The vote exempted Michigan from provisions of the federal Uniform Time Act.

"This means there is no legal roadblock for our trying again," Dzendzel said.

He said the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce and the Detroit Chamber of Commerce would be spearhead the new drive.

"Michigan is the hub of an industrial center," Dzendzel said. "The state being out of step on time with the rest of the nation, especially the eastern states, made it tough on business."

It also messed up railroad, train and bus schedules and radio and television scheduling, he noted.

Dzendzel said if the legal number of nearly 198,000 valid signatures are collected, there are two ways possible to put the state on daylight savings time.

The Legislature, he said, can put the state on daylight savings time by a simple majority of both houses. It would take a two-thirds vote to give the uniform time immediate effect, he added.

If the Legislature fails to pass the daylight saving time bill, Dzendzel said, the proposition still could be out on the November, 1970, election ballot. This would mean daylight savings time could not be effective until 1971, however.

Immediately effect would be needed to make the change possible next summer.

"Only Michigan, Arizona and Hawaii were out of step with the rest of the nation," Dzendzel said. "I'll be ready to lead the fight in the Senate for the change next year," he promised.

The first count in the last general election indicated the daylight saving time issue passed by a narrow margin. A recount later showed it was defeated.

October Record Set On Big Mac

ST. IGNACE (AP)—Although October weather in the Straits area was one of the wettest in recent years, traffic over the Mackinac Bridge set a new record for the month.

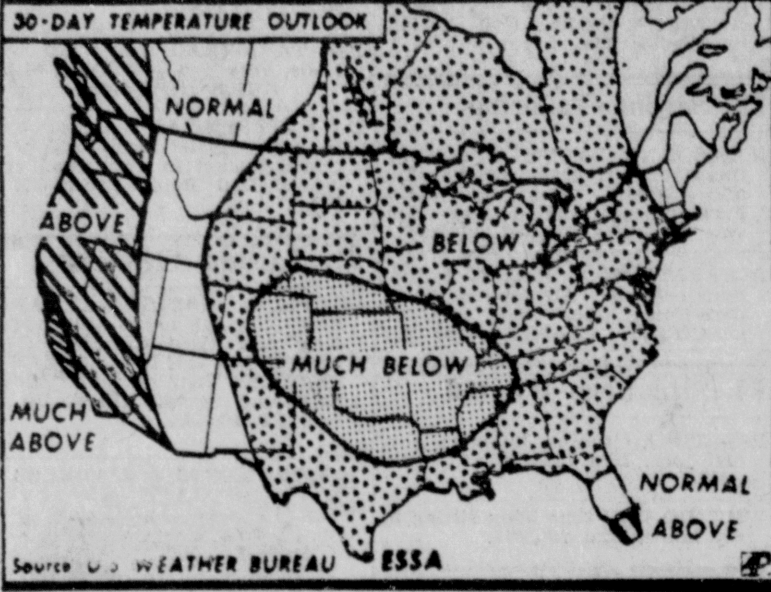

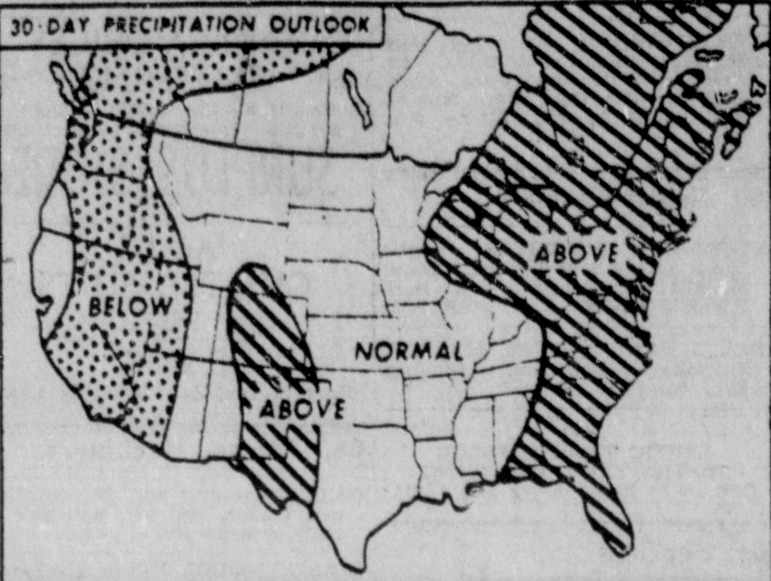

Prentiss M. Brown, chairman of the bridge authority, said there were 151,785 bridge crossings during the month, up 26 per cent from the 120,341 crossings during the same month last year.

"There was rain, snow or storm clouds at the Straits on 28 out of 31 days last month," Brown said. "A year ago, it rained only eight days in October. Ordinarily such weather would have dampened our color tour and Indian summer traffic, but such was not the case."

Truck traffic during the month showed an increase of 30.7 per cent, mostly in pickup trucks, over the same month a year ago.

Bridge traffic for the first 10 months of the year amounted to 1,642,869 crossings, up nearly 22 per cent from the 1,348,054 crossings during the same period in 1968, Brown reported.

Revenues during the first 10 months were more than $6 million, up from the $5.93 million during the period last year. This included $3.11 million of the $3.5 million annual subsidy from the state. The increase came despite the 60 per cent cut in bridge crossing tolls.

THE WEATHER OUTLOOK for November, based on data supplied by the U. S. Weather Bureau, forecasts the precipitation and temperatures as indicated on above graph. (AP Wirephoto)

Girl Judges

EAST LANSING (AP) — Four Mecosta County girls will be representing Michigan Saturday at the second regional 4-H Club horse judging contest at Harrisburg, Pa.

The girls are Kristy Brand, Jill Stillson, Jeanie Irwin and Becky Meyer. Coaching the team will be Mrs. Larry McClelland of Big Rapids and Dave Wilber of Morley.

Unity, Public Safety Target Of New Mayor

DETROIT (AP) — Roman S. Gribbs, who won the mayoral election by the narrowest margin in Detroit history, Wednesday named unity and public safety as the highest-priority matters to be achieved when he takes office.

The 43-year-old Wayne County sheriff, victor over County Auditor Richard H. Austin in Tuesday's election, told a news conference, "United, the city can move forward and solve its problems—and the No. 1 problem is crime."

Showing few signs of wear-and-tear from the three-month campaign, Gribbs indicated, however, he thought the problem of achieving unity was not a racial question. About 40 per cent of Detroit's population of 1.5 million is Negro.

"There is very little of this thing they call polarization in our city," he said. "I always knew that my rapport with the black community was very good."

Analyses of the unofficial vote in which Gribbs won by 257,714 to Austin's 250,651, with 1,935 write-ins for Councilwoman Mary Beck, indicated about 82 per cent of the white voters cast their ballots for Gribbs while about 94 per cent of the blacks voted for Austin.

Austin, 56, a Negro, also pleaded for unity after the election was over.

Gribbs said he plans to meet Thursday with Austin to discuss the future of the city and to "find out what his plans are." Asked whether this meant he might try to offer Austin a position in his administration, Gribbs replied: "No."

Gribbs will take over the $35,000-a-year mayorship next Jan. 6. Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh declined to run for reelection after two four-year terms.

Top Aides Not On 'Firing Line,' Pentagon Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House reported President Nixon is not considering the replacement of either Gen. Creighton W. Abrams as commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam or of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, chief of the U.S. delegation at the Paris peace talks.

"No such recommendation has been made to the President," White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters.

The statement was made in comment on reports aired Tuesday night on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite.
